PREFACE.

WHILE the convention of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions was in session in Lowell, Mass., in the fall of 1880, one of the guests at my father's house was the Rev. W. S. Smith of Auburndale, Mass. During an after-dinner conversation, some remarks were made by him concerning genealogical research, and these remarks led to subsequent correspondence with the reverend gentleman on the same topic. To him, therefore, is due the credit of having first turned my thoughts to tracing the ancestry of my branch of the Dows or Dowse family. After having successfully done this in a comparatively short time, the importance of collecting material for a genealogical history of all descendants of Lawrence Dows, the emigrant ancestor, so impressed itself upon my mind, that I sent printed circulars to all persons of our name found in directories and elicited by correspondence. But the work progressed slowly. It was not until the early part of 1887 that I began to push the work with vigor, using all my leisure moments, day and evening, in the search for missing genealogical links and items of historical interest.

It has been my aim to learn as much as possible regarding our ancestors; to study their lives and portray their characters; to furnish a history of them which can be read for pleasure or instruction by their descendants; to tell of the force and determination possessed by those who assisted in laying the foundations of our nation; to collect the material for a genealogy from those who yet remain to us, who have knowledge of facts and circumstances important to transmit to their descendants; to give to the present and to future generations a comprehensive memorial of those who have gone on before us, a notable ancestry, worthy of emulation in their character, heroism, and pursuits. It is by studying the records of our forefathers that we become acquainted with their characters and deeds, and intimate with their labors to establish a government and found a nation whose corner-stone should be liberty both in church and state.

The members of the earlier generations of the Dows or Dowse family were "true Yankees." For more than one hundred and twenty-five years none of them went beyond the bounds of New England. It was long after the Revolutionary war when they turned their steps westward, and sought fresh fields to cultivate and new opportunities of success. The characteristics of the family are well expressed by a correspondent when she says: "They possess firmness, integrity, and stability of character, not moved by every passing wind, but if they once get started they know the reason why, and no ordinary hurricane will stop them."

Here and there are those whose aspirations led them through the collegiate course, afterwards to fill seats of honor and power, "whose works live in history, and whose deeds are told in story." My purpose is not to extol these; they have been eulogized by pens more versatile than mine. It is the many whose lives were spent in a quieter way, but who, nevertheless, have aided the general advancement of the race, whom I would eulogize. Of some, perhaps, no more will ever be known than what is written upon their monumental stone: Born ——; died ——.

Much reflection will arise upon reading this work. Some facts will be recalled to mind that were almost forgotten, and some things, new and interesting, I feel assured, will appear as the book is perused. The old may meditate upon, and the young may study with profit, the historical material and biographical sketches presented.

By my labors, sundered branches and scattered members of families have been brought together and made one by a common ancestor. Strange as it may seem, cousins and even brothers not heard from for ten or twenty years have been found, in my efforts to collect every thing relating to persons by the names of Dows and Dowse. A great amount of time and expense has been put into the work. Careful examinations have been made of probate records and registries of deeds for Eastern Massachusetts and Southern New Hampshire. Personal visits have been made to towns where the names were most common, so as to connect every link in the ancestral chain.

So many descendants of the female branches of our name have manifested an interest in my work, that I have endeavored to collect records of all such, commencing at the sixth generation. A complete genealogy of the Masterman family, as far as known, is thus collected, and two large branches of the Newman family, a branch of the Morse family, and many genealogical lines by other names are represented.

Having succeeded in gathering the records of more persons than it was supposed ever descended from the emigrant ancestor, I attempted in the latter part of 1887 to trace the origin of Lawrence Dows in England. The coat-of-arms found upon the tombstone of Jonathan Dows, son of Lawrence Dows, in the old burying-ground in Charlestown, Mass., is the same design as that registered for County Hants, England. In this county is the town of Broughton, and its old burying-ground is said to have once contained a tablet bearing the same coat-of-arms. These facts lead me to believe that Lawrence Dows came from County Hants, England, and possibly from Broughton. This supposition can probably never be proved or disproved, for the early records of Broughton have been destroyed.

Over four hundred circulars were issued February 1, 1888, offering a reward for date of birth, birth-place, and parentage of Lawrence Dows. These were sent to the various town registrars of County Hants, England, but resulted in very few returns, and only meagre information. Again in September, 1888, a copy of the same circular, with an additional one offering a larger reward, and asking for addresses of persons by the name of Dows or Dowse, was sent to various vicars and rectors throughout England. This circular, or its proffered reward, brought so many responses that it was necessary to arrange the material received. The result will be the compilation of a distinct branch, — the Dowse or Dows family in England. At about the same time, correspondence to Ireland was begun and successfully continued until the material of another branch, — the Dowse family in Ireland, — was arranged.

I wish to express my thanks for the prompt responses to my letters of inquiry, and particularly to those persons who assisted in obtaining many early family records. I am especially grateful to Mrs. Eliza Coolidge Dowse of Sherborn, Mass., who early assisted on the Sherborn branch of the family; to Miss Mary E. Dowse of Watertown, Mass.; to Miss Annie E. Valentine of Natick, Mass.; and for early Masterman and Newman records to Mr. Eben Newman of Weld, Me.

I am greatly indebted to my brother, Justin N. Dows, for important material obtained from the Boston Public Library, and the library of the New England Historic-Genealogical Society of Boston, Mass., and for special labor in obtaining records and other desired information.

Mr. Charles H. Burbank, librarian of the Lowell, Mass., Public Library, and Miss Harriet F. Hill, his assistant, have afforded much assistance in my researches among the many genealogical works which the library possesses.

To Mr. Harry Stocks of Lowell, for revision and correction of manuscript and other favors in collating and arranging the several departments of the work, I return my grateful thanks.

For the painstaking care and professional skill with which the mechanical work on this volume has been handled by the Vox Populi Press, I wish to record my thanks.

Although it is impossible to prepare a perfectly complete genealogy, all that reasonably could be done has been accomplished. I am satisfied that the work will compare favorably with others of like character. Often, when it seemed impossible to connect several of the branches, travel and personal examination of records have brought the desired information. The result is, that nearly all existing families of the name, of the present generation, can trace their lineage either to Lawrence Dows, or directly to England or Ireland.

It is true that in the following pages many family records are wanting. This is due to the non-existence of, or negligence in recording, the family records, or the failure of persons to reply to repeated letters of inquiry. This latter fact is to be regretted, but it is hoped that sometime these records may also be forthcoming for preservation and possible publication.

The labor of correspondence, extending through a period of nine years, has been the means of forming a large circle of pleasant acquaintances, and many of these new-found relatives have become valued friends.

GENERAL INFORMATION.

Derivation of the Name.

From the Latin "dulcis" (sweet) is derived Dulcia, a name much in vogue in Spain in the earlier centuries, and this became Douce in the south of France. Many of the latter name were once to be found in Normandy, Jersey Island, and the lands of Norman conquest. Doubtless here it was that in the transition of the language it soon became Douse, and upon the name being carried to England it was spelled Dowse. It is certain that the names Douce and Douse are now rarely to be met with in England, while Dowse is yet common.

One writer says that Douce is derived from the Latin "dux" (a leader), from which also are derived the words Ducat, Duke, etc.

Another writer, in attempting to find the derivation of surnames, says Dowse was doubtless the sailors' word Douse, meaning "to sink."

"An Etymological Dictionary of the English Language," by Rev. Walter W. Skeat, says: "Dowse, in use among the Scandinavians as a verb, meaning to strike in the face."

Origin of the Family.

It would appear from the derivation of the word, and from so much history of the countries under the rule of the Normans at varying times as the compiler has been able to peruse, that without much doubt the family is of Norman origin. This conclusion is reached from the fact that the Normans were a people who conquered in order to extend their domain, and it is probable that the road traversed by our ancestors under the name Douce or Douse was directly to England, or by way of the Netherlands to England, and from thence to Ireland or to America. The Netherlands or Holland was at one time invaded by the Normans.

Current tradition among the members of the Dowse family in Ireland says that their family is of Dutch extraction, and that the emigrants came to conquer lands for their estates.

Various Spellings of the Name.

There have been what may be termed six correct ways of spelling the name, viz: Douce, Dowce, Dous, Douse, Dows, and Dowse. The first three are now obsolete, the fourth is but rarely used, while the fifth and sixth are now the commonly-accepted ways. The name has been found improperly written in town records, registries of deeds, etc., thus: Daws, Dawes, Dawse, Dowes, Dowss, and Dowst. There is, however, a distinct family by the name Dawes, whose origin dates back as early as that of the Dows or Dowse family. There is also the name Dowst in sections of New England, descendants probably from Samuel Dowst, who was in Portsmouth, N. H., or its neighborhood, about 1689. The name Dow belongs to another family, of which there were several early settlers in America.

Douce and Dowse as Christian Names.

"Douce was early used as a Christian name for girls. The name later became Doucett and Dowsett."

"1565, Sept. 9, buried Dowse, wife of John Thomas" (St. Dionis Backchurch, London.) — Bardsley's Puritan Nomenclature.

Dowse Savage, daughter of Sir John Savage of Clifton, Cheshire, Eng., married Sir Henry Bold of Bold, Eng. — Genealogy of the Savage Family, p. 17.

Places whose Names are derived from Dows or Dowse.

Dowsdale or Dowsedale, Lincolnshire, Eng., borders on Cambridgeshire, in hamlet of Whaplode Drove, and forms part of Croyland Fen.

Dowsby is said to be a small place also in Lincolnshire.

Douce Mountain, 2384 feet high, is situated in County Wicklow, Ire.

Dows City, Wright co., Ia., was named after Hon. Stephen Leland Dows. (See p. 191.)

Dows versus Dowse.

In the representations opposite pages 1 and 9 of the grave-stone and tombstone in the old Charlestown (Mass.) burying-ground, it will be seen that the name is spelled Dows. It was so written by most of the immediate descendants of the emigrant, and is to the present day in that which may be termed the Billerica (Mass.) branch. In the burying-ground above mentioned the name is found engraved as "Dows" fifteen times and as "Dowse" five times.

Eleazer Dows, who went from Charlestown to Sherborn, Mass., in 1775, was the progenitor of the Sherborn branch. His first wife was buried in Charlestown under the name "Dows." Eleazer himself always signed his name without the "e," but he was buried as "Dowse." It is possible that his second wife was the author of this change, for thereafter the name was known in Sherborn as "Dowse." All of the descendants of Eleazer have so written it except the descendants of Eleazer's grandson Adam, who settled in New York state. In some instances members of the same family have used the two modes of spelling, apparently to suit their individual fancy.

The compiler has often been asked why he dropped the "e." It will readily be seen neither he nor his ancestors had one to drop.

Old and New Styles of Computing Time.

From the year 325 to 1582 time was computed by the Julian calendar. The year commenced on the 25th of March, and according to ancient reckoning, March was the first and February the last month of the year. Each fourth year was a leap year of 366 days. This caused the spring equinox which happened on the 21st of March in the year 325 to come on the 11th of March in 1582. In the latter year Pope Gregory XIII, finding the fixed ecclesiastical observances falling so far behind their seasons, by advice of his philosophers, instituted a change. Ten days were added to the calendar, and the following rule promulgated: "Years ending with two ciphers are not to be leap years, except when the number is an exact multiple of 400." This system was adopted by all nations except England and her colonies, Russia, and Turkey. Very many persons in England, foreseeing the change which was likely to ensue, used double dates. That which we write Jan. 30, 1724, was then written Jan. 30, 1723–4, or Jan. 30, 172$\frac{3}{4}$. The American colonists used figures to designate the months, and they would write above date thus: 30, 11, 172$\frac{3}{4}$—January being the eleventh month, Old Style. England augmented the error by making a leap year of 1700. Finally, by statute of George II, the year was regulated, and the style changed. The first day of January, 1752, became the first day of the year, and the third day of September, 1752, became the fourteenth of that month. The edict of Pope Gregory XIII was also adopted. Eleven days were thus omitted, and 1800 was properly not made a leap year.

In compiling this work, when the dates occurred previous to 1752, between Jan. 1st and Mar. 25th, the author has made the year conform to the New Style, while the days of the month remain unaltered. In taking this course the erroneous reckoning remains, as the original records in all cases have been followed.

The Christening or Baptism.

The christening or baptism of an infant commonly occurred the first Sunday after birth. In some cases both happened on the same day. The church records thus become valuable to the genealogist, as they give a clew to the year and place of birth of many not recorded for some reason in the town or city records.

Signification of Church Terms used in this Work.

Persons who were baptized in infancy, upon "consenting to the covenant" at or after the "age of maturity," were admitted to the church, and such were said to "own covenant." These were not admitted to the Lord's table, or "full communion" as it was called, but were allowed the privilege of baptism for their children.

Persons other than infants or children were admitted to the church at the time of their baptism, but not to "full communion."

Members who were under the strict care and discipline of the church, and had publicly declared their belief, were 'admitted to full communion" upon vote of the communicants.

Caution.

The "caution" was to prevent the settlement of persons whom the town officers did not want among them, viz: disreputable persons, vagrants, and those likely to become a town charge. But in those early days of strong prejudices the "caution" was often used to harass persons of less rigid and less local theological views or customs. It was undoubtedly used very often as a boycott against persons whose trades might cut into the profits of some selectman or other influential person of the town.

Plan and Numbering of the Work.

Lawrence Dows is numbered 1, and his descendants are numbered consecutively down to the tenth generation. An asterisk (*) between a number and name indicates that the name is subsequently taken up as the head of a family, and the same number is placed in the center of the line above said name. The small figure above and after a name indicates the generation from the ancestor, Lawrence Dows. A woman's name in parentheses indicates that such was her maiden name.

Where persons themselves or their immediate ancestors emigrated from England to America, the records of such have been reserved by the compiler for his work upon the name in England and Ireland.

The families or branches of families whose origin has not been traced to a foreign country are few, and they are to be found under the head of "American Unconnected Families."

GRAVE-STONE OF LAWRENCE DOWS, CHARLESTOWN, MASS.

DOWS OR DOWSE FAMILY IN AMERICA.

FIRST GENERATION.

LAWRENCE DOWS[1], the ancestor, was b. a. 1613, in Broughton, Co. Hants, England, probably, and emigrated previous to the year 1642 to Boston, Mass. He was a carpenter by trade, and settled about the year 1649 in Charlestown, Mass., where he d. Mar. 14, 1692.

He m. (1) prob. in England, MARTHA ——, who was bur. Oct., 1644, in Boston, so says rec., but place is now unknown.

He m. (2) MARGERY, dau. of Robert RAND, by Alice, dau. of Nicholas Sharp. She was b. a. 1625, in England; ad. to First Chr., Charlestown, Mass., Dec. 9, 1643, and d. Apr. 12, 1714, in Charlestown.

Robert Rand was an inhabitant of Charlestown a. 1635 and d. a. 1639. He came from England with his wife Alice, and her sister Mary, the wife of Capt. Richard Sprague. In Richard Sprague's will are mentioned Lawrence Dows and his two daus., Elizabeth and Mary. Alice, wife of Robert Rand, was ad. to First Chr., Charlestown, Jan. 8, 1686, and d. Aug. 5, 1691, æ. 97, g. s. — d. July 29, æ. 98, rec.

Lawrence Dows was ad. to First Chr., Boston, Mar. 22, 1645; made freeman May 26, 1647; ad. to First Chr., Charlestown, Mar. 21, 1652; made constable, 1656; in list of tithing-men, Charlestown, Mar. 11, 1678, and Feb., 1679. The first land here owned by him was purchased about 1650. It was an island of arable ground on Mystic side, in the marshes opposite the neck of Charlestown. He bought a house and garden of Mathew Gibe, Oct. 12, 1654; two "commons" between "Notomy" river and Charlestown, 1675; house and garden near the neck, and three-fourths acre "Eastfield" against the house; and seven or eight other parcels were bought or exchanged at various times. Middlesex Deeds, lib. xi, fol. 267, indicates that he owned land near if not bordering on the "training field." When Malden was set off, in 1649, Charlestown retained a large quantity of land on "Mistick" side, and a committee was chosen to determine in regard to the division. Their report was accepted Mar. 1, 1658, and a division made. Lawrence Dows received twenty-six acres of wood land and four and one-half acres of common land.

The grave-stone of Lawrence Dows is found in Charlestown's oldest burying-ground, foot of Phipps st. The stone is one of twenty, — fifteen of which have the name spelled "Dows," and five "Dowse."

The following is a copy of the will of Lawrence Dows, with inventory, as found in vol. viii, pp. 32 and 33, Cambridge, Mass., pro. rec. It is to be regretted that there is no mention of the immigrant's antecedents in the will, and also that the original will is not in existence to show his handwriting and signature:

WILL OF LAWRENCE DOWS.

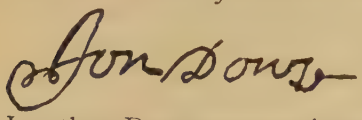
JONATHAN DOWS[2], son of LAWRENCE (1), was b. a. 1661, in Charlestown, Mass.; was a shipwright by trade; made freeman Oct. 11, 1676; ad. to full com. First Chr., Charlestown, Feb. 23, 1700; said to have been "a man of high repute, and one of His Majestie's council." "Enjoyed the title of Hon. Jonathan Dows, Esq." He is mentioned second in a list of twelve who served consecutively at the head of the board of selectmen of Charlestown from 1700 to 1765. From the county clerk's books, East Cambridge, it appears that Jonathan Dows was appointed special justice of the Inferior Court of Common Pleas June 27, 1718, and appointed justice of the Court of Common Pleas Dec., 1718. He served in these capacities until 1741.



He m. (1) Nov. 18, 1694, in Charlestown, ELIZABETH, wid. of —— Gilbert, and dau. of Lieut. Samuel and Lydia (Wiswall) BALLART or BALLARD. She was b. Feb. 24, 1674, in Charlestown, and d. Jan. 22, 1701. "Dows" on g. s.

He m. (2) July 3, 1701, in Charlestown, CATHERINE, dau. of Henry and Elizabeth (George) HERBERT or HARBERT. She was a member of the Old South Chr., Boston, Mar. 27, 1698; ad. to full com., First Chr., Charlestown, Dec. 13, 1741.

Jonathan Dows d. Jan. 28, 1745, in Charlestown. His will of Oct. 2, 1744, pro. Feb. 6, 1745, devised to dau. Catherine the mansion occupied by I. Rand and Silence Harris; to grandson Jonathan 20£; to son Nathaniel house N. W. end of Bunker Hill and eight acres adjoining; to son Joseph N. W. half of orchard; to dau. Elizabeth 30£; to Samuel the residue. Samuel, Joseph, and Nathaniel were named as exrs.; only Samuel and Joseph served; possibly Nathaniel was away at sea.

In the old burying-ground in Charlestown many coats-of-arms were formerly to be found, only ten of them now remaining. These are all on stone, and nine are on the front of tombs built in the side of a slope. The other one is that of Hon. Jonathan Dows, Esq., representation of which is seen opposite. The tomb bears date of 1725, and is in a good state of preservation.

Besides the Dowse coat-of-arms * there is another impaled with it. Which one is not known exactly, as the colors are wanting. It is similar, however, to that of the Winslows, and undoubtedly belonged to Jonathan's second wife, as the first wife had a plain stone to her memory in another part of the burying-ground. The helmet in the representation is that of an esquire.

The tomb and lot were finally bequeathed to the descendants of Mehitable (Brentnall) Dowse (152), by her first marriage to David Barker. A number of bodies have been interred there in recent years.

It is said that Jonathan Dows, on his will, 1744, used a seal on which the chevron alone could be seen; if such was the case, it has probably been misappropriated by some relic hunter, as it is not there now.

* The English Dowse coat-of-arms has the same outline as here represented, and will appear in its proper colors in the work upon the name in England and Ireland.

The will of Samuel Dowse and inventory of the estate are here given in full, as they show well the style and custom of the day, with the articles in common use at that period:*

WILL OF SAMUEL DOWSE.

IN THE NAME OF GOD, AMEN. I, Samuel Dowse of Charlestown, in the County of Middlesex in New England Gentleman, being at present very Sick and weak in Body, but of Sound and disposing Mind and memory (blessed be God for it) and not knowing how Soon it may please God in His allwise Providence to call me out of this Life, do therefore make and ordain this my Last Will and Testament, in manner and Form following, First recommending my Soul to God thro' the Merits and Mediation of Christ my Redeemer, and my Body to the Earth to be buried by my Executors hereafter named in a Christian, decent manner; And as to my Estate, wherewith it hath pleased God to bless me, I give and dispose of the Same as follows.—

Imprimis — I will and order that all my just Debts and funeral Charges be paid by my Executors herein after named as soon as conveniently may be after my Decease.

Item — I Give and bequeath to my Brother Nathaniel Dowse all my Land at the Neck, and on Bunkers Hill (so called) which was given to me by my Honoured Father in his Will: to him the s[d] Nathaniel and to his Heirs forever.—

Item — As to all the Rest of my Real Estate of what Nature so-ever, and wheresoever the same may be I give and bequeath the same to my Brother Joseph Dowse, and to his Heirs, Upon this Condition nevertheless that he, the Said Joseph Dowse shall honourably and comfortably maintain and support my late Wife's Aunt, Rachel Papot during her Life, and decently bury her at her Decease.—

Item — I give and bequeath to my well beloved Friend Elizabeth Sewall, with whom I have engaged to marry, the sum of five thousand Pounds in Bills of Credit of the old Tenor to be paid to her by my Executors out of the first Effects of mine that come to hand after my Debts and Funeral Charges are paid and discharged

Item — I give and bequeath to my Sister Katharine Wyer the Sum of five hundred Pounds in Bills of Credit of the old Tenor to be paid to her by my Executors as soon as conveniently may be. I also give her my Negro woman Phyllis and all her children.

Item — I give to my Sister Elizabeth Sarrazin the sum of five hundred Pounds in Bills of Credit of the old Tenor to be paid to her by my Executors as soon as conveniently maybe.

* Bills of Old Tenor.— In the will reference is made to bills of old tenor, and the term is thus explained: In the early colonial days each colony issued paper money equal in value to silver. As more and more paper was issued it depreciated in value, until the people became alarmed, and a new issue was made, the old being redeemed at market value. This also soon began to depreciate until it was worth less than one-twentieth of its former value. A third issue was made, and so on, each being termed respectively old tenor, middle tenor, new tenor, 1st new tenor, 2nd new tenor, etc. English Parliament seeing the necessity of something more uniform, finally forbade the issue of paper currency, and declared that which was issued null and void except for certain treasury purposes. This engendered a bitter feeling toward the English, which had much to do with the final outbreak —the Revolution. The next paper money issued was by agreement of the combined colonies, and was the Continental money for war purposes.

Item—I give and bequeath to my late Wife's Aunt Rachel Papot aforenamed my Negro woman Phillada, to be hers during her life.—

Item—I give and bequeath to my Neice Isabella Dowse, Daughter of my Brother Joseph Dowse all the Furniture of my best Chamber, and also such other Goods as were given her by her Aunt my late Wife.

Item—I give and bequeath to Mrs Susanna Alden in token of my Regard for her great Kindness to me and to my late Wife in our Sickness, the sum of one hundred Pounds in Bills of Credit of the Old Tenor to be paid to her by my Executors as soon as conveniently may be after my Decease.

Item—I give and bequeath to the Revd Mr Hull Abbot, and to the Revd Mr Thomas Prentice, Pastors of the Church in Charlestown, the sum of ten Pounds each in Bills of Credit of the old Tenor; to be paid to them by my Executors as soon as conveniently may be after my Decease.—

Item—I give and bequeath unto Henry Newman the sum of two hundred Pounds in Bills of Credit of the old Tenor to be paid to him by my Executors as soon as conveniently may be after my Decease.

Item—As to all the Residue of my Personal Estate of what kind or quality soever, after my Debts, funeral Charges and the Legacies herein before given are paid and discharged, I give and bequeath the same to my Brothers Joseph and Nathaniel Dowse and to my sister Katherine Wyer to be equally divided between them.—

Finally—I hereby ordain constitute and appoint my aforenamed Brothers Joseph and Nathaniel and my Friend Henry Newman to be Executors of this my last Will and Testament, hereby revoking all former or other Wills, Legacies or Bequests by me in any wise before named willed or bequeathed ratifying and confirming this and no other to be my Last Will and Testament. In Witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this twenty fifth Day of October in the twentieth year of the Reign of His Majesty George the Second King over Great Britain and I. ELEAZER DOWSE[2], son of LAWRENCE (1), was b. Jan. 25, 1668, in Charlestown, Mass, where he lived and was a sea-captain. The Boston News-Letter of Feb. 18, 1703, mentions that Captain Dowse will sail for London within a month; endorsed by Governor Winthrop. Mar., 1708, Eleazer and bro. Nathaniel were chosen to run lines and renew bounds between Boston and Charlestown.

In Judge Samuel Sewall's papers mention is made of Eleazer Dowse attending the funeral of Governor Dudley, Apr. 8, 1720, and Capt. Eleazer Dowse is so often spoken of in these papers that one infers him to be an intimate friend of the judge. A Doctor Dowse is also mentioned; the title may have been conferred upon Samuel (47).

Eleazer Dowse d. July 21, 1725, in Charlestown. His will was made July 5, and pro. Aug. 20, 1725. Among other things "he did provide and order that in case his son Jonathan Dows should see cause to marry and be settled, his oldest son, lawfully begotten, should have one hundred pounds of the estate," etc. Jonathan did "see cause to marry," and the next records relate to the payment of the legacy, by Jonathan and his sister, Mary (Dowse) Trow.

From one of the records is the following:—"and God having graciously given me man sons, the eldest whereof is named Eleazer Dows, to whom said one hundred pounds belong by fors of said will, he being of age, to receive the same, etc., also in virtue whereof, I, the said Jonathan Dows, have hereunto set my hand and seal the first day of September, anno domino, one thousand seven hundred and forty-nine, in the twenty-third year of his majestie's reign."

After the death of Eleazer's wife a division of the property was made between Jonathan Dows, Mary Trow, and Elizabeth Davis.

Eleazer Dowse m. Sept. 21, 1693, in Charlestown, MARY, dau. of Daniel and Mary (Sprague) EDMANDS of Charlestown. She was b. Oct. 28, bapt. Nov. 2, 1673, in Charlestown, and d. there a. 1733. Eleazer Dowse and wife were ad. to First Chr., Charlestown, June 9, 1706.

CHILDREN OF ELEAZER AND MARY (EDMANDS) DOWSE.

Ebenezer Dows undoubtedly removed to Billerica soon after his marriage, was a farmer and there d., so tradition says, about two weeks after the battle of Saratoga, which occurred Sept. 19, 1777. He was the progenitor of the large number by the name Dows who have lived and d. in Billerica, though none of the name are at present living there. He was in list of sittings in the "meeting house," Billerica, fifth seat below, about 1736, and is taxed minister's rate, 1733, 10*s.* 6*d.*; in 1755, 6*s.* 7*d.*; province tax, 1776, was 19*s.* 6*d.*

The first deed recorded in which the name Ebenezer Dows appears, is for land in Billerica, from him to James Barret, Dec. 28, 1725. Ebenezer Dows sold one-half part of his homestead to his son Benjamin, June 6, 1741, but the real division and quitclaim deed was not executed until Apr. 14, 1767.

records of Boston for 1754, '55, '56, '62, '63, as being on a committee from Ward 10 to "take a walk or visitation of the town"; appointed on a committee Nov. 15, 1759, to receive and distribute money to the sufferers by the fire at Oliver's dock.

He was a merchant on Milk st., Boston, at the time of the great fire of 1760, and was burned out. Joseph undoubtedly lived in Boston until after the birth of all of his children, when he removed to Salem. He was comptroller for 1765, in Salem, and had a salary of 40£.; was one of the executors of the will of Addington Davenport, and also guardian over his two children.

It is said that some of Joseph Dowse's children were living in Salem after the peace of 1783; the family mansion being that occupied by the Messrs. Wheatland about 1850, a single parlor of which it is said sufficed for "his majestie's service."

He made claim for loss on June 17, 1775, of 153£. on buildings, 20£. for lands, fences, and trees, at 12 Main st., Charlestown (James Hunnewell's Hist. of Charlestown).

† A letter from Robert C. Winthrop, jr., Nov. 27, 1887, says he is not certain that it is the portrait of Mrs. Dowse, or one of her sisters, but at the time it came into possession of Mr. Winthrop, about forty years ago, a vague tradition associated it with the name of Margaret (Temple) Dowse. It is undoubtedly a representation of one of the daughters of Hon. Robert Temple, and it was left in this country upon his hurried departure for England, at the breaking out of the Revolutionary war.

131 vii. EDWARD, bapt. Oct. 22, 1756; d. Sept. 3, 1828, in Dedham, Mass.

Of the twin daus. of Hon. William Phillips, Hannah m. Samuel Shaw, and Sarah m. Feb. 24, 1790, in Boston, Mass., Capt. Edward Dowse. These men were pioneers in the carrying trade to the East Indies and China after the Revolution.

Sarah Phillips was b. Nov. 29, 1756, in Boston, was a member of the Old South Chr., Boston, Jan. 9, 1780, and d. July 3, 1839, in Dedham, Mass. Her mother was Abigail, dau. of Edward Bromfield. While in Charlestown, Mass., Edward Dowse gave power to his bro., Nathaniel, to sell land-warrants in districts of Kentucky, assigned to him in 1787, by soldiers of the Continental line of Virginia troops, recorded 1797. Edward Dowse and wife left Boston at the time of the yellow fever in 1797. The first record of land owned by Edward in Dedham was made in 1798. He bought land on both sides of High street, and built the house represented opposite. Until it was ready for occupancy, he lived in a smaller one, whose meagre quarters did not limit the hospitality in which he delighted, although it is said that the guests had to sit on the stairs and on the bed in one of the rooms, while the table was spread in the other.

Memorial History of Boston says: "Among the fine residences in Dedham, in former days, were those of Fisher Ames and Edward Dowse, both of whom were much interested in horticulture, and some of those beautiful elms which adorn her streets were planted by them. They had orchards, gardens, and ice-houses, which were regarded as luxuries in those days."

Edmund Quincy, the grand-nephew of Edward Dowse, in his biography of his father, Josiah Quincy, gives the following reminiscences of Edward and his family: "Mrs. Dowse and her sister, Mrs. Shaw, were twins, and so closely resembled each other as to be indistinguishable, the one from the other, by their nearest friends, excepting by a slight difference of dress. The country people around were accustomed to speak of the three as 'Mr. Dowse and his two wives.' Yet they never spoke of them but with love and gratitude; for their bounty was only limited by their means, and their charity neither began or staid at home. Any life of my father would be imperfect without a tribute of affectionate remembrance to those beloved relatives, and, least of all, any written by me, who am daily reminded of them by the roof that shelters me; by the trees they planted, and by the river that they loved." After stating other good qualities, he says: "The excellent Mr. Dowse, however, had one defect in his almost perfect character:

Yet one fault he had, but that was a thumper!

He was a Democrat,—a Democrat of the Democrats!"

To his strongly adherent principles, he doubtless owed his nomination and election as representative from Massachusetts to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from Dec. 6, 1819, through the winter, which was a memorable one to him. He exerted his best efforts to prevent the extension of slavery. His domestic correspondence, as given in the work referred to, shows the extent to which his feelings were aroused by the great debate upon the floor of Congress for the admission into the Union of Missouri as a slave-holding state. He resigned his seat at the close of the "long session" and spent the rest of his life at Dedham, Mass., where he delighted to entertain distinguished persons from Boston.

THE DOWSE HOUSE, DEDHAM, MASS.

The will of Edward Dowse, Mar. 21, 1804, pro. Nov. 4, 1828, gave, besides the estate, 7000 £. to Sarah his wife, that being a part of the inheritance from her father. The will of Sarah Dowse, June 30, 1830, was pro. Sept. 3, 1839, but no statement was rendered. The estate was left to her nephew, Josiah Quincy, thence to his son Edmund, who bequeathed it to his son, the present owner and occupant, Dr. Henry P. Quincy. The residence and grounds, called "Bankside," are still intact and kept in excellent appearance.

Mr. Edward Dowse and wife, and Mrs. Shaw, were buried in the Dowse tomb in the village cemetery, and on the monument covering their remains, Mr. Josiah Quincy inscribed the following:

— 73 —

BENJAMIN DOWS[4], son of EBENEZER (22), was b. Feb. 6, 1716, in Billerica, Mass., where he was a farmer and d. a. 1793. His name is in the list of sittings in the meeting-house, Billerica, a. 1736, in second seat, side gallery; taxed minister's rate, 1755, 3*s.* 11*d.*; province tax, 1776, 3£. 5*s.* 4*d.* He was one of the fifty-four men under Capt. Jonathan Stickney, Col. Ebenezer Bridge's reg., who marched from Billerica on the morning of Apr. 19, 1775, upon the Lexington alarm. He may have been one of the fifty who were in training as minute-men by vote of the town in March, but this is uncertain. It is stated that he served six days; wages were 8£. 6*s.*, and 1*d.* per mile for three miles,—total 8£. 6*s.* 3*d.* (Mass. Rolls, vol. xiii, p. 118).

His name is in the "Coat Rolls," as receiving a coat, for services, "more or less" for eight months at the siege of Boston, lasting from May to Dec., 1775 (Mass. Rolls, vol. lvi).

He is called a corporal under Capt. Solomon Kidder, Col. Brooks' reg., enlisting at White Plains, N. Y., 1776. For this service he received a coat and bayonet (Mass. Rolls, vol. xx, p. 179).

He was also one of thirty-two men who marched from Billerica under Capt. Edward Farmer, Col. Jonathan Reed's reg., "to reinforce the Northern Army" which was fighting Burgoyne at Bennington and Saratoga, in response to the resolve of the General Court, passed Sept. 22, 1777.

He enlisted Sept. 29, 1777; was discharged Nov. 8, 1777; wages per mo. 2£. 4*s.*; pay for mileage, 185 miles, 15*s.*; total, 3£. 0*s.* 1*d.* (Mass. Rolls, vol. xix, p. 38).

At the sale of pews, Dec. 8, 1797, to pay for the new meeting-house (Unitarian) erected in that year, Benjamin Dows and William Frost bought pew No. 49, lower floor, for $128.

Cambridge registry of deeds gives evidence of much buying and selling of land between Benjamin, Benjamin, jr., and others.

"Benjamin Dowse of Billerica" wins an appeal, but pays costs (Cambridge Court of Sessions, 1735–48, p. 332).

JOHN DOWSE[4], son of EBENEZER (22), was b. Oct. 10, 1717, in Chelmsford, Mass., says the Billerica rec., though prob. just over the line from the "Dows homestead," as no rec. appears in Chelmsford. He is in the list of sittings in the meeting-house about 1736, second seat, side gallery; prob. removed soon after to Roxbury, Mass., where he was a farmer and d. Apr. 29, 1790, g. s.

For a long time the compiler was unable to prove that this John Dowse was a descendant of Lawrence Dows, as early Roxbury records were poorly kept. Visiting the old burying-ground, corner Eustis and Washington sts., Roxbury district of Boston, Mass., the following lines and inscription were found upon a stone, and the date of death, with age, is his only proof that John Dowse of Roxbury and John Dows of Billerica are identical:

"In memory of Mr. John Dowse who departed this life Apr. 29th, 1790, in the 73rd year of his age."

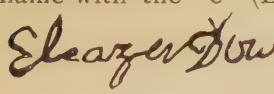
ELEAZER DOWS[4], son of JONATHAN (59), was b. Mar. 2, 1728, in Charlestown, Mass., where he m. (1) Nov. 9, 1749, EUNICE DANA, who was b. a. 1726, and d. Sept. 18, 1764, in Charlestown, being bur. in the Phipps-street burying-ground, where the name on her stone is spelled "Dows." She was ad. to First Chr., Charlestown, Sept. 15, 1745.

He m. (2) Apr. 18, 1765, in Charlestown, MEHITABLE BRENTNALL, widow of David Barker. She was b. Jan. 14, 1732, in Chelsea, Mass., and d. Mar. 16, 1809, in Sherborn, Mass. By David Barker she had children whose descendants are living in Charlestown and Medford, Mass.

Eleazer Dows was ad. to full com. First Chr., Charlestown, Dec. 23, 1764; he followed his trade as leather-dresser in Charlestown and Sherborn, Mass., and signed a petition Nov. 24, 1773, against the importation of tea by the East India Co. (Frothingham's Hist. Charlestown, p. 291).

He settled in Sherborn, Mass., in 1775, on the Southville road, opposite the house of William Woodcock, having fled from Charlestown with his children at the burning of that town in 1775, by which he lost all his possessions.

About the time of his going to Sherborn, Eleazer Dows used his name with the "e" (Dowse), and to this is ascribed the fact that all his descendants, and necessarily all of the name who were born in Sherborn, do the same. In early documents, etc., he signed his name without the "e," and Eleazer, jr., did the same. The name seems to have been as distinctly marked "Dowse" in Sherborn in later days, as it was "Dows" in Billerica, Mass.



In the list of losses, June 17, 1775, Eleazer "Dowse" made claim for 340*£. on buildings (house 266£*. 13*s*. 4*d*.; barn, work-house and smoke-house, 73*£*. 6*s*. 8*d*.), 12*£. on fences and trees, 15£. on personal estate, 2£*. 10*s*. for cartage of personal effects; total, 369*£*. 10*s*.; property situated at 132 Main street, Charlestown (James Hunnewell's Hist. of Charlestown, 1887). This estate was mortgaged to Dr. I. Rand in 1760 and discharged in 1770, and included dwelling-house, shop, and barn.

Eleazer Dows d. June 25, 1807, in Sherborn, Mass. His will, dated Jan. 29, 1803, appointed his son Joseph sole exr. The second clause of the will reads: "I do hereby give to my son Joseph Dowse fifty dollars on account of his extra kindness and attention to me and my beloved wife (the step-mother of Joseph)." After the death of his wife and the payment of the aforesaid legacy of $50 to his son Joseph, the residue of the estate, valued at $2100 more or less, was equally divided among his children.

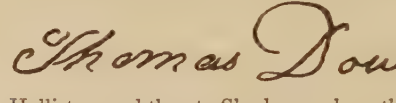
Thomas Dowse, aptly styled the "Literary Leather-Dresser," was a most remarkable man in his way. Born in Charlestown at a time when the people were in the midst of intense revolutionary excitement, we find his parents fleeing for their lives at the burning of the town on the 17th of June, 1775, first to Holliston, and then to Sherborn, where the father was obliged to start anew in his trade as leather-dresser. Thomas received injuries when six years old by falling from a tree; rheumatic fever followed, rendering him lame and a great sufferer at periods for life.



He was taught his trade by his father, then entered partnership with different ones, working continually until his 74th year. A better extract of his life can hardly be given than that presented in the "Orations and Speeches" by Edward Everett, vol. i, p. 324:

"I scarce know if I may venture to adduce an instance, near home, of the most praiseworthy and successful cultivation of useful knowledge on the part of an individual, without education, busily employed in mechanical industry.

"I have the pleasure to be acquainted, in one of the neighboring towns, with a person who was brought up to the trade of a leather-dresser, and has all his life worked, and still works, at this business. He has devoted his leisure hours, and a portion of his honorable earnings, to the cultivation of useful and elegant learning. Under the same roof which covers his workshop he has the most excellent library of English books, for its size, with which I am acquainted. The books have been selected with a good judgment, which would do credit to the most accomplished scholar, and have been imported from England by himself. What is more important than having the books, the proprietor is well acquainted with their contents.

"Among them are several volumes of the most costly and magnificent engravings. Connected with his library is an exceedingly interesting series of paintings in water-colors,— copies of the principal works of the ancient masters in England, which a fortunate accident placed in his possession,— and several valuable pictures purchased by himself. The whole forms a treasure of taste and knowledge, not surpassed, if equalled, by anything of its kind in the country." With reference to the copies in water-colors, it may be well to state that he hesitated about paying the custom duties of one thousand dollars on them, but while placed on exhibition they were so much admired by the public, that he had no farther thought of parting with them.

There is a story that when about fifty years of age he condescended to address a lady with intentions of marriage, but for some reason that was the end of it.

He was the first in America to raise a monument to the memory of the immortal printer, Franklin, which he did in a way quite characteristic of the man. He did not attempt to raise money by subscription, but put his hand in his pocket and in a quiet way made his plans. These resulted in erecting at Mount Auburn a monument with a simple inscription, near which he also erected a smaller stone to mark his own resting-place.

Toward the close of his life he wisely provided for keeping together his valuable library, by donating it on the 30th of July, 1856, to the Mass. Hist. Society, to be forever kept by them in one room, to be used there, but never to be removed. This donation consisted of five thousand well-bound volumes and supposed to have cost Mr. Dowse not less than forty thousand dollars.

Shortly before his death he consented to sit for his portrait, which was painted by M. Wight, and which now hangs in the room called the Dowse Library Room of the Mass. Hist. Society. By his will, of which George Livermore and Eben Dale were executors, twenty-five thousand dollars were distributed in special bequests, and forty thousand dollars were placed in the executors' hands to be distributed for charitable, literary, and scientific purposes. The collection of water-colors was given by the executors to the Boston Athenæum, where it remained until 1876. Upon the opening of Museum of Fine Arts, Trinity Square, it was placed therein, and will probably always remain, though belonging to the Athenæum. The Asylum of Aged Indigent Females and the Massachusetts General Hospital received additions to their funds from the same source. The Dowse High School, at Sherborn, stands as a monument to his memory.

To Cambridge, where he lived many years, he left one thousand dollars for any public improvement. This was divided — five hundred dollars being given toward the chime of bells in the tower of Grace Church, and five hundred for an illuminated clock for the street in which he lived. On D, the largest bell of the chime, is inscribed: "Let the name of Thomas Dowse of Cambridge be remembered. The liberal man deviseth liberal things."

The Dowse Institute, at Cambridgeport, is the result of a fund of $10,000, the income of which is used for any charitable purpose. At present the income is spent for a course of lectures, concerts, and readings, held in Union Hall, each year.

In closing this sketch a word should be said of the Eulogy of Thomas Dowse, by Edward Everett, delivered before the Mass. Hist. Society, on the 9th of Dec., 1858, and subsequently published in book form. Those who would learn more of the "Literary Leather-Dresser" will do well to read this Eulogy,* rendered as only Edward Everett could render it, and which portrays the character of the man so exceedingly well.

ELIZABETH DOWSE[4], dau. of JONATHAN (59), was b. Dec. 19, 1742, in Charlestown, Mass., where she m. Oct. 10, 1765, ROBERT WILKINSON. She owned covenant at First Chr., Charlestown, Nov. 30, 1766.

* The Eulogy, printed by John Wilson & Son, 1859, contains portrait of Thomas Dowse, from painting by M. Wight, engraved by J. Andrews. The engraving from which was printed the likeness in the Proceedings of the Mass. Hist. Society, vol. 1855–58, was from painting by M. Wight, engraved by H. Wright Smith.

The title of LL. D., conferred by Harvard College, was construed by Everett to mean Literary Leather-Dresser.

The First National Bank of Cambridge has bank notes with likeness of Thomas Dowse upon them.

— 169 —

HANNAH DOWS[5], dau. of BENJAMIN (73), was b. Oct. 24, 1756, in Billerica, Mass., where she m. Oct. 19, 1780, JAMES, second son of Mar-maduke and Sarah (Reed) MASTERMAN. Grandmother Masterman, as she was familiarly called, was a woman of real worth,—a true Christian, ever ready to converse upon religious matters, and with a kind word for every one. She was a member of the Congregational church, but was liberal in her religious views, willing to glean good from other denominations. She was a great peacemaker, and benevolent and kind to the poor. Her influence lives after her, and her memory is loved and cherished by all who knew her. She d. Aug. 8, 1838, in Weld, Me.

The pedigree of the Masterman family is as follows:

1. JOHN MASTERMAN of Co. York, England, had son
   1. MARMADUKE, who was a sea-captain, and came to America about 1755, at the time of Gen. Hull's expedition to Canada. He was m. Mar. 23, 1756, by Rev. Wm. Hooper, rector of Trinity Chr., Boston, Mass., to Mrs. Sarah Reed, wid. of Samuel, and dau. of James, jr., and Sarah (Pinson) Capen (70). She was bapt. June 23, 1734, in First Chr., Charlestown, Mass., and m. (3) Thomas Goodwin. Capt. Marmaduke Masterman d. Sept. 23, 1759; he is said to have d. on board his vessel. Children:
      1. MARMADUKE, JR., bapt. July 24, 1757, at Christ Chr., Boston; d. æ. 16 yrs.
      2. JAMES, b. Apr. 4, bapt. Apr. 8, 1759, in Charlestown; m. Hannah Dows (169). He was settled for some time in Deering, N. H., but removed to Weld, Me., where he was a farmer and d. May 10, 1842.

The following sketch is contributed by Mrs. David Masterman of Weld, Me.:

"James Masterman, or Grandfather Masterman as he was known, was an honorable man and a Christian, rigid in his religious views, and a democrat in politics. He belonged to the Congregational church, to which he firmly adhered and in which he was at one time deacon. He was small in stature, quick-tempered, and promptly resented an insult, even to blows. When the Revolutionary war broke out he was sixteen years old. He served as cook in the army for a time, and afterwards shipped in a privateer. He became a half-pensioner.

"At the close of the war Grandfather Masterman made a number of voyages to sea,—several times to the West Indies. On one voyage he went to Bilboa, Spain, and while there he made the acquaintance of a wealthy Spanish lady who owned many vessels. She told him if he would marry her daughter Poll she would give him a brig well loaded with a Dutch cargo. Then, after a pause, she remarked, 'But, there, you would n't do it if I should give you all I 'm worth.' 'How do you know, ma 'am?' he queried. 'Because,' said she, 'you 've had a few hours' conversation with a black-eyed girl in your native country, and you never will be married, either of you, until you are married to each other.' Her remark proved true. Masterman found his sweetheart waiting his return, although he fully expected she would be married to another.

"On another voyage he and the ship's crew were castaways at sea. The rations became reduced to two mouldy biscuits and a half pint of water each day. One day they found in the hold an old beef-bone which they souped, each man putting in his biscuit, and this constituted the principal meal for that day. At the end of the sixteenth day they were taken from the wreck, emaciated and feeble, scarcely able to do any work.

"On another voyage some two or three hundred flat-headed Indians came running down to the water's edge with their boats on their heads. With surprising quickness these were launched, and the Indians made for the ship as fast as possible. The captain, knowing that they were bent on murder and plunder, ordered a cannon loaded with grape-shot to be discharged among them, which made fearful havoc. Those not disabled turned their boats shoreward with the utmost speed, and on reaching land deserted their boats and darted into the woods to be seen no more.

"In the winter of 1803–4 Grandfather Masterman and his family, with two or three other families, moved from Deering, N. H., to Maine. They had got ready the previous winter, but no snow coming, they postponed the journey for a year. After waiting a while for snow they put horn-beam trucks under their pungs and traveled in this way for forty miles, when, finding snow, they pursued their journey on runners. On reaching Andover they found there was no road through the woods to Weld, then known as No. 5 Plantation, so they were obliged to stay until March. Most of their number stopped with a Mr. Merrill. The boys worked out as opportunity offered, and thus they managed to get through the winter. In March the men and horses, together with men and teams from Andover, turned out and broke the road through Byron and over the intervening hill to Plantation No. 5, a distance of about twenty miles. Returning for the women, children, and goods, they were obliged to camp over night, the loads being so heavy. They were twenty-seven souls in number. In the midst of the night Grandmother Masterman prepared a meal of meat soup, of which they ate, and were ready to start at daybreak. In No. 5 Plantation they found only five families in as many log houses, in the midst of small clearings. The family stopped with Nathaniel Kitredge, whose wife was grandmother's sister, 'Patty' or Martha Dows, until they could build a log house for themselves. They were surrounded by almost unbroken forests, inhabited with bears, wildcats, moose, and other wild animals, ofttimes bold and troublesome. The early settlers had to keep a constant lookout for the safety of their families and their domestic animals. An abundance of fish was to be found in the pond and its tributaries, and the settlers made good use of the supply.

"The children of Grandfather Masterman's family were noted for their honorable traits and upright character. It is seldom that a family of eight can be found who possessed so many sterling qualities. When the word of one of them was given it was as good as his bond, and he would fulfil its import as promptly as if it were a note of hand. They were also hardy and courageous, well calculated to endure the hardships to be found in a new country, and possessed of pleasing manners and an honest straightforwardness of purpose."

JOSEPH DOWS[5], son of BENJAMIN (73), was b. Feb. 5, 1760, in Billerica, Mass., where he lived, was a farmer, and there d. Nov. 4, 1847.

He m. (1) May 23, 1784, in Billerica, by Rev. Henry Cumings, SARAH, dau. of Samuel and Judith (Pollard) SPRAGUE. She was b. Oct. 27, 1768, in Billerica, and there d. May 8, 1809.

He m. (2) Jan. 29, 1811, in Billerica, MARY, dau. of Isaac and Rhoda (Wilson) SPRAGUE. She was b. Sept. 3, 1789, in Billerica, and there d. Jan. 23, 1841. She was a staunch Christian woman, and was a niece to Joseph's first wife, who was dau. of Samuel, who was son of Nicholas Sprague, an early settler of Billerica.

In the fall of 1776 a tall and slender youth of sixteen, Joseph Dows joined a company of volunteers which went to the north-western part of New York, to prevent the depredations then being committed by the Indians in that section. As the company was to bivouac for the winter it was divided into messes of six to a tent. Joseph's mess constructed a dug-out in the side of a hill, which made quite comfortable quarters. He was a noted marksman and killed much wild game, which was his principal food, and which was undoubtedly the cause of his becoming so strong and robust, that with a height of more than six feet when he returned home in the spring his friends could hardly believe him the slender boy who bade them good-bye in the fall.

It is related that at a moment when Col. Samuel Bullard's regiment, at the battle of Stillwater, was not in close action, the soldiers were ordered to lie down and let the balls pass over them. The man standing back of Joseph delayed for a moment, and his head was cut off by a cannon-ball. After the surrender of Burgoyne, when passing over the battle-field, he stepped in a pool of blood which came nearly to the top of his shoes.

On receiving pay for his services Joseph immediately invested in land adjoining the homestead, thereby saving the loss which soon followed by the great depreciation of the Continental money. After the close of the war he was promoted to major of the "home artillery," which caused him ever after to be called "Major Dows." He drew an annual pension of $96 until his death, going to Boston on horseback once a year to get the money.

REVOLUTIONARY RECORD OF JOSEPH DOWS.

The following facts are taken from his declaration for a pension, dated Aug., 1832, a copy of which was furnished by Hon. John C. Black, commissioner of pensions, and also from the Revolutionary Rolls in the State House, Boston. The "declaration for pension" being somewhat at variance with the records in the Revolutionary Rolls, in the following items the letters "D. P." are used for the former, and "R. R." for the latter.

D. P.— In 1776 he volunteered for six months with Capt. John Minot of Chelmsford, Mass., who marched about Sept. 1 to Dorchester Heights, near Boston, where the company joined the Massachusetts regiment commanded by Col. Howe, and he was employed with others in building forts and doing guard duty until the "term" expired.

D. P. — In the spring of 1777 he engaged for two months with Capt. Varnum of Dracut, Mass., joining the Massachusetts regiment commanded by Col. Howe at Providence, R. I., where they were stationed for a time. Afterwards his company was ordered on board a vessel at Greenwich and conveyed to Warwick, R. I., remaining there until "term expired."

R. R. vol. xxi, p. 3.— He enlisted with Capt. John Minot, under Col. Josiah Whiting, in the Massachusetts Bay State militia, for two months' service in R. I., arriving at Warwick Neck May 10, 1777; discharged July 9, 1777. Time of service, including seven days' travel (66 miles), was 2 mos. 8 days; wages 2*£. per mo.; total, 4£*. 10*s*. 8*d*.

R. R., vol. xxii, p. 183, and D. P.— In Aug., 1777, he enlisted for four months under Capt. Stephen Russell of Dracut, Mass., rendezvoused Aug. 15 at Chelmsford; then marched to Bennington, Vt., where he arrived the day after the battle, which occurred Aug. 16, 1777. His company then marched to Pawlet, Rutland Co., Vt., where it was attached to the regiment of Col. Samuel Bullard, who marched for Stillwater, N. Y., where the army under Gen. Gates was opposing the British and Indians under Gen. Burgoyne.

Joseph Dows was in the battle of Stillwater, Sept. 19, and "at the taking of Burgoyne" (which may possibly mean that he was in the battle of Oct. 7, which was the last, and was followed by the surrender of the enemy at Saratoga, Oct. 17, 1777).

Soon after these last events he was ordered to Albany, then down the Hudson river to Esopus, which had been burnt by the British Oct. 3, 1777, then to Tarrytown and White Plains, both in Westchester Co., N. Y., where he was discharged Nov. 30, arriving home on Thanksgiving day, in Dec., 1777. Time of service, including days to return home, 3 mos., 16 days; wages 2£. per mo.; total 7£. 1*s.* 4*d.*

D. P.—He enlisted in Aug., 1778, for eight months, under Lieut. Flint of Tewksbury, Mass. (the captain being sick), whose company marched to White Plains, N. Y., where they were attached to the regiment commanded by Col. Poor, a New Hampshire officer, then ordered to West Point, N. Y., to assist in building Forts Putnam and Arnold. At the approach of winter he was ordered to King's Ferry, north-west corner of Westchester Co., N. Y., where his company was employed in preparing fascines until March, 1779, when he was discharged.

R. R., vol. xix, p. 86.—He enlisted June 16, 1778, with Lieut. Flint, under Col. Thomas Poor, whose regiment was raised to fortify and screen the passes of North river in the state of New York, under act passed by the General Court Apr. 20, 1778. He was discharged Feb. 11, 1779. Time of service, including 12 days allowed to return home, 240 miles, 8 mos. 9 days; wages 2£. per mo.; total 16£. 12*s.*

D. P.—In Sept., 1779, he served three months under an orderly sergeant, at Claverack, N. Y., and vicinity, hunting Indians, who disappeared.

R. R., vol. xxiv, p. 106.—He enlisted Oct. 28, 1779, with Sergt. William Warland, under Col. Samuel Danney, in the Bay State militia, for defense of the U. S. A. Discharged Dec. 3, 1779, serving 1 mo. 6 days, including ten days to return home, 200 miles; wages 16*s.*

At the sale of pews, Dec. 8, 1799, to pay for the new meeting-house (Unitarian), erected in that year, Joseph Dows bought pew No. 14, in the gallery, for $69.75.

The First Baptist Chr. was organized Sept. 30, 1828, and he was ordained deacon Oct. 9, 1829, resigning Sept., 1839. The meetings of the church were held in the red school-house, near North Billerica, for some time, and when a meeting-house was erected nearer the center of the town he supplied most of the lumber.

Possessed of a stern integrity, when he was moved for right it was with might. This was well shown when the temperance question was first agitated in the early part of the century. Doubtless there are many living to-day who can remember when it was considered a duty that the minister upon calling should have a glass of toddy. Dea. Joseph took his glass regularly twice a day, until a certain temperance lecture was given at the little red school-house, previously mentioned, when he deemed it his duty to sign the pledge, which he kept until the day of his death. It was to such sternness of character, together with the ennobling influence of a devoted Christian mother, that the large family of children owe their happiness and success. Of the twenty-one children, thirteen were married and lived useful lives. Two are surviving in 1889.

Will of Joseph Dows, Feb. 23, 1836, made son Joseph sole exr.

THE DOWS HOMESTEAD.

Ebenezer Dows (22) settled in Billerica about the year 1715. No record has been found to show how he came to possess any land. Tradition says, however, that he built a house of two rooms on the site of the present building. The property passed to his son Benjamin, and he added to the house other rooms. Benjamin's son Joseph acquired possession of the property at his father's death, and as his family increased additions were made on the back-side. The plate here given is as it appeared about the year 1865, when Clara Dows, a granddaughter of Joseph, sketched and made the painting from which the plate is produced.

Four generations of children were born at the homestead, and nearly all have passed away. None of the name now live in Billerica, and the property has passed from the Dows family. Yet the cherished memories clustering around the "Old Homestead" are not forgotten, but are rehearsed to children's children. A family ride from Lowell would frequently be toward Billerica; it has always been an attractive spot to one claiming descent from this source. When visiting the homestead we often have heard the declaration, "Here is where father slept, and in winter the snow would blow through the cracks of the walls upon the coverlet of the bed." There were trials and hardships, and there were joyful times, as well, in those days. It could hardly be otherwise in a family of fourteen children such as Dea. Joseph Dows had.

SARAH DOWS[5], dau. of BENJAMIN (73), was b. Mar. 10, 1762, in Billerica, Mass., and d. Aug. 26, 1851, in Weld, Me. She m. Jan. 17, 1782, rec. (she stated in her application for a pension that the date was May 15, 1782), in Billerica, by Rev. Henry Cumings, EBENEZER, son of Thomas and Hannah (Locke) NEWMAN. He was b. June 7, 1756, prob. in Bolton, Mass.; removed with his parents soon after the Revolutionary war to Deering, N. H., where he lived for many years, then removed to Andover, Me., and shortly after to Weld, Me., where he was a farmer and d. Sept. 29, 1839.

He enlisted at Woburn, Mass., where he was residing, June 1, 1775, under Capt. John Wood, Col. Loammi Baldwin's regiment, and was stationed for the siege of Boston; and, without leaving when his "term of eight months" expired, he re-enlisted into the same company and regiment for one year in Jan., 1776, at Mystic, Mass., where he appears to have remained until he marched to New York city. On the retreat of the army after the evacuation of the city, Sept. 15, 1776, he was wounded in the leg and furloughed to a physician, and at the expiration of the furlough he returned to his regiment, but his limb was so bad that he obtained another furlough about Nov. 1, 1776, to return home, which, on account of his feebleness, he did not reach until Feb., 1777. After the wounds had healed he served in 1777 a tour of three months at Roxbury, Mass.

NEWMAN PEDIGREE.

Thomas Newman, a housewright, resided in Lexington, Mass.; was of Bolton, Mass., 1765, when he joined the other heirs in disposing of the estate left by his wife's father. In Nov., 1769, he was dismissed from the church in Lexington to the church in Rindge, N. H., but probably did not remain long at Rindge, as Dec. 10, 1772, he purchased land of his brother-in-law, Ebenezer Locke, and in the deed is called of Woburn, Mass. He finally settled in Deering, N. H.

The intention of marriage between Thomas Newman and Hannah Locke was published Feb. 2, 1746, at Lexington. Hannah Locke was in the fourth generation from Dea. William Locke of Stepney Parish, London, Eng. Children of Thomas and Hannah (Locke) Newman, prob. b. in Bolton, Mass.:

She was living as late as Aug., 1848. The exact date of her death is not known. He was b. in 1758, in Bolton, Mass., lived in Woburn, Mass., during the war, was a farmer in Deering, N. H., for forty years, then removed to Berlin, now Phillips, Me., and finally to Dixfield, Me., where he d. Nov. 5, 1838. While an inhabitant of Woburn, Mass., he enlisted in July, 1775, under Capt. Wood and Col. Gerrish as a private and substitute for Ebenezer Newman, and served two months, when he was relieved by Ebenezer's return to his place in the ranks. He served three months in the laboratory at Cambridge and as guard under Sergt. Bryant and Maj. Brown in 1776, and the same year also six weeks under Lieut. Joseph Johnson on guard-duty at Boston. From Jan., 1777, he served three months as a substitute for John Colby at Roxbury, in the command of Col. Heath; then about Aug. 1, 1777, he enlisted as sergeant with Lieut. Johnson for guard-duty at Cambridge, Mass.; and two months as sergeant from Jan., 1778, under Capt. Nathan Sargent, guarding prisoners at Bunker Hill from Gen. Burgoyne's army.

From May, 1778, he served six months under the same Capt. Sargent and Col. Gerrish, as guard to the Burgoyne prisoners at Cambridge, to which he added three months' additional service from Mar., 1779; then, from July, 1779, he performed a tour of four months at Winter Hill, near Boston, and in Nov., 1779, as corporal, he was in Capt. Walker's company which marched to Albany, N. Y., and was stationed at Deboth, on the Mohawk river, N. Y. In Aug., 1780, he was "called out" for two months' service in Rhode Island, under Capt. Greene, in Col. Howe's regiment.

ELEAZER DOWS, JR.[5], son of ELEAZER (81), was b. July 6, 1764, in Billerica, Mass., and d. Dec. 19, 1844, in Charlton, N. Y. He volunteered at the age of fifteen years and nine months as a soldier in the Revolutionary war. He served three months in 1780, under Gen. Sullivan, stationed near Newport, R. I., where he frequently saw Gen. Lafayette; also served three months in 1781 at West Point. After the war he went to New Hampshire and then to Charlton, N. Y., where he bought a farm and settled Apr. 8, 1788.

He m. Nov. 25, 1790, LINDA, dau. of Capt. John and —— (Robinson) WRIGHT of Grantville, Mass. She was b. Mar. 23, 1774, in Grantville, and d. Nov., 1855, in Charlton, N. Y. Capt. John Wright was a native of New Haven, Conn.; was an officer in the Revolutionary war, being engaged in the battles of Monmouth, White Plains, Trenton, etc. Capt. Wright immigrated to Charlton, N. Y., in 1788, d. in 1805, in Catskill, N. Y., and his wife d. 1807, in Charlton. The farm of Eleazer Dows was about a half mile north of the village of Charlton. Here he plodded on, clearing forests and doing his farm-work. He erected a large frame building, which he stocked with tin for making tin-ware and material for making hats, and started peddlers on the road through New York, New Jersey, and parts of New England.

By his efforts other tradesmen located in Charlton, and he was really the means of causing it to be quite a thriving village. Eleazer Dows had one hobby — school. Knowing the want of book-learning himself, it became a part of his religion to see that the district school was kept open winter and summer. He allowed no lagging, no truants, no tardiness, and upheld the master in every thing for school advancement. He watched carefully that the poor man's children were in school, often questioning his own children, and if they said "No, sir," unlike Felix of old (Acts 24:25), he waited not for, but made a "convenient season," and learned the "why and wherefore" of the absentees. If illness was the cause, there was help; if in want of shoes in winter, shoes were provided; if clothes, "grandma" always had plenty and to spare; there was no "going to do" with him, it was done. The character of Eleazer Dows and wife is well told by a grandchild who was brought up under their roof. She says: "They were the grandest, most noble couple with whom it was ever my lot to be associated. I except no one. If lending to the Lord meant any thing, it meant every thing to them. Surely they made God their banker and built their own monuments without sham, fuss, or display. The world was better for their having lived in it."

REVOLUTIONARY RECORD OF JOSEPH DOWSE.

The following facts are taken from his declaration for a pension, dated Aug., 1832, a copy of which was kindly furnished by Hon. John C. Black, commissioner of pensions, and from the Revolutionary Rolls in the State House, Boston. The "declaration for a pension" being somewhat at variance with the records in the "Revolutionary Rolls," in the following items the letters "D. P." are used for the former, and "R. R." for the latter:

D. P.—He was drafted Dec., 1777, for six months, into the company under Capt. Harrington, stationed for some time at Sherborn, and also at Mystic, Mass., guarding military stores.

R. R., vol. ii, p. 133, and D. P.—He enlisted July 13, 1779, under Capt. Thomas Hovey, serving in Col. Nathan Tyler's and Lieut.-col. Whiting's command, which was first stationed at Providence, R. I., but after the British evacuated Newport,* was ordered to that place, and he there rendered guard-duty until discharged early in Dec., 1779; time of service 4 mos. 18 days, total wages 14*£*. 2*s*. 3*d*.

* The British took possession of Newport early in Dec., 1776, and remained there during Gen. Spencer's campaign in 1777, and Gen. Sullivan's in 1778, and did not withdraw their troops until late in the fall of 1779.

R. R., vol. xxxv, p. 188. — He enlisted at Springfield, Jan. 7, 1780, and is described as of light complexion, 5 ft. 6 in. high, age 21.

R. R., vol. iv, p. 214. — Muster roll of men who "engaged" in the Continental army for six months. He enlisted July 4, 1780, from Sherborn, Mass., and served 6 mos. 12 days.

R. R., vol. xx, p. 2. — He enlisted Aug. 19, 1781, under Capt. John Maynard, Col. Webb's regiment [under Capt. Howard as "sergeant" in the same regiment, says D. P.], which marched to New Jersey* for three months' service, according to act of the General Court passed June 30, 1781. Joseph Dowse was discharged Dec. 1, 1781. Time of service, including 200 miles' travel, 3 mos. 22 days, wages 3£. per mo., total 11£. 4s.

Joseph Dowse received an annual pension of $75 from 1832 until his death.

JOSEPH DOWS MASTERMAN[6], son of HANNAH DOWS (169), was b. July 31, 1789, in Deering, N. H., where he lived until he was fourteen years of age; then removed with his parents to Weld, Me., where he d. June 27, 1878. His school privileges were limited, as were those of most of the early settlers; he had a good memory, was very correct in his statements, and a man of sound judgment.

He was a farmer and mechanic, and lost his right eye in June, 1829, by blasting stone in the highway. He was a member of the Freewill Baptist church, and was very firm in his religious views. Although nearly blind for forty-nine years, his wife had read the Bible to him so much that a mistake in reading could hardly be made without his notice. He could go without a guide ten miles, and do much of the work about a farm.

When a boy Joseph lived with a Quaker family four years. They said Joseph was worth more than all other boys they had ever taken, because he was trusty and truthful. He lived for a while in Berlin, now Phillips, Me. He was ensign and then lieutenant in the home training military drill for several years, and was a democrat.

In March, 1816, he and his wife's brother, Nehemiah Story, went to Portland, Me., and there took the boat for New York, working their passage. From New York they traveled to Pennsylvania, where they worked during the season, felling trees and assisting in building mills. They returned home the last of October, making the entire journey on foot. At Deering and Hopkinton, N. H., their former home, they halted a day or two. Joseph intended to make Pennsylvania his future home, but for some cause gave it up.

He was a very successful hunter and trapper, and an expert at fishing. One night when he and his brother Benjamin were nearing home with a large string of trout, Benjamin said: "Joe, I can hear something traveling in the road ahead." "Are you sure?" said Joseph. "Yes, I can hear him walking." "It 's a bear," said Joseph. "He won't trouble us; it 's the fish that he wants; we will keep along till we find some stones, and we will give him some." They were in the woods, and it was so dark they could see nothing. Putting down the fish they picked up a few stones and threw one in the direction where they thought the bear must be, and it struck something with a dull thud. The well-judged shot made bruin jump out of the road, and, crashing through the underbrush in his wild scamper, he was gone, and then all was still. They threw more stones in the direction he had gone, but heard no more of him. The next day they found there a bear's track which was eight or nine inches long.

520. i. JOSEPH, JR., 2d[7], b. Feb. 11, 1842, in Billerica, Mass., where he d. Dec. 18, 1861.

The early childhood of Joseph, jr., 2d, was marked with great truthfulness and a tender conscience. He attended school at what was then known in Billerica as the Fordway, and his teachers always spoke of him as a very exemplary and studious boy.

In the fall of 1856 he entered the Howe School with the intention of simply obtaining a good education; but after two or three years the principal of the school, Mr. Gilman, seeing how studious he was, proposed that he should be fitted for college. Though this was opposed by his mother on account of his health, he continued his studies with the view of entering the Divinity School at Cambridge.

When nineteen years of age he united with the church, and was then more determined than ever to pursue his studies that he might preach Christ to his fellow-men. But his hopes were not to be realized; his constitution began to show signs of weakness, and soon the dreaded disease, consumption, took hold of him.

During the four weeks of confinement to his room, very many of his schoolmates and friends visited him, for whom he always had a good word, and would say, "I am contented and happy." His influence for good upon others was great. He spoke of death with as much composure as one would exhibit when going on a short journey. Thus passed away one whose career, had he lived, would undoubtedly have been great in the field of Christianity. The sermon preached in Billerica, Mass., on Sunday, Dec. 22, 1861, at the funeral of Joseph Dows, jr., 2d, by his pastor, Rev. T. Clarkson Russell, of the Baptist church, was printed in pamphlet form for private distribution.

He, the young and strong, who cherished
Noble longings for the strife,
By the roadside fell and perished,
Weary with the march of life.—Longfellow.

CALVIN DOWS[6], son of JOSEPH (171), was b. Sept. 7, 1820, in Billerica, Mass., and d. Feb. 9, 1874, in San Mateo, Fla., being buried in Billerica. Not being very robust, it was thought best by his parents that he should learn a trade. At the age of eighteen he left home to work in a shoe-shop with his cousin, David P. Clark, at Ashburnham, Mass., where a few years later he married. The union was a most happy one. He spent the summer of 1863 in Washington, D. C., in the soda business. The next winter he removed to Boston, where for thirteen years he was in business with his brother, Gustavus D. (285).

He was interested in every thing that tended to improve the social and religious community. His health failing, he went to Florida, hoping to be benefited by the change, but it was too late, and quietly, while asleep, his spirit returned to God who gave it. He inherited bronchial and pulmonary difficulties that no change of climate could cure, and his departure from earth was a great loss to his family and friends. Possessed of a quiet, retiring disposition, he made no ostentatious show in the world, but as one said at his funeral service, he was honorable in his business, a model husband and father, and a Christian gentleman in every sense of the term.

He m. Jan. 16, 1842, in Ashburnham, Mass., MARY ANN TOWNSEND, dau. of Alvan and Eusebia (Russell) WARD, and granddau. of Samuel and Sylvia Ward. She was b. Dec. 17, 1824, in Ashburnham, and now res. in South Framingham, Mass., with her son. She was for many years a church missionary at the First Baptist Chr., Lowell, Mass.

AMOS WRIGHT DOWS[6], son of JOSEPH (171), was b. June 29, 1823, in Billerica, Mass. He has been a sufferer from early childhood, and is an example of what a man can bear and yet be cheerful. When he was but six years old his complaints began. His two older brothers obtained permission to go fishing after having planted a certain patch of corn, and to assist them in getting done earlier young Amos dropped corn for them. He complained of pain in the abdomen, but worked along bravely until about ten o'clock, when the pain moved into his left leg, and he was obliged to lie down. The pain became so severe that his brothers had to carry him to the house. He was put to bed, and did not rise from it for many months without assistance. The thigh from hip to knee became so diseased that pieces of bone would protrude through the skin and had to be removed. Liquids injected into an opening at the hip would pass through the thigh and come out under the knee. Surgeons in consultation decided that the disease extended so far into the hip that an amputation could not be performed, and the boy must die. The care of a loving mother and sister carried the boy safely through his prolonged confinement, however, and after ten weary years of painful suffering the leg freed itself of the original bone, and a new bone formed, and the flesh partially healed. A stiff knee and hip were the result of this disease, and at times the flesh would ulcerate, and very painful sores result. The district school was a mile distant from home, but by the aid of a pair of crutches made and given to him by a kind neighbor, he managed to walk there in summer. In winter his older brothers would draw him upon a sled, on which he had to lie, as to sit was impossible.

When about twenty-two years old he engaged as clerk in the drug- and variety-store of his cousin, John Dowse, in Lowell, Mass., and five years later (in 1850) he bought out his cousin, sold off the variety part and retained the drug-business. In 1857, when thirty-four years old, the painful operation of boring into the bone of his diseased leg was performed, and an inch or more of decayed marrow removed. Being a person of temperate habits he soon recovered his wonted health.

In 1883 he retired from active business, his son Azro M. and Charles Naylor succeeding him. It is certainly a marvel that so much suffering could be endured, and those who knew him in boyhood said knowingly that if Mr. Dows should reach manhood he never would be able to earn a livelihood. He is now a retired business-man with a good competency, and he ascribes his success in life to indomitable energy.

He m. Apr. 12, 1854, in Lowell, ELIZABETH DORCAS, dau. of William C. and Dorcas (Dutton) SMITH. She was b. July 15, 1828, in Westford, Mass. Mr. and Mrs. Dows are members of the First Baptist Chr., Lowell. They visited Europe in 1867, at the time of the Paris exhibition, at which he had a financial interest in the American restaurant, and spent about three months in sight-seeing. Lowell has always been their home, but they have a winter resort in Interlachen, Fla., to which they repair each season.

GUSTAVUS DAVIS DOWS[6], son of JOSEPH (171), was b. Oct. 26, 1828, in Billerica, Mass., and d. Feb. 15, 1886, in Boston, Mass. With a limited knowledge of the drug-business he went from Lowell about 1858 and opened a drug-store on Washington st., Boston, where push and enterprise soon built up a prosperous business. At this time the demand for summer drinks was supplied mainly by lemonade and fermented hop beers. Carbonated drinks dispensed in a crude way were beginning to find favor. While in Lowell he experimented, aided by his brother Amos W., and put together the first combination of syrup-cans, coolers, ice-cutter, and cream-can ever used in this country. This was patented Dec. 10, 1861, and became so popular that he could not supply the demand for them. The first fountain under this patent was used at the store of his brother Amos W., 213 Central st., Lowell, Mass.

G. D. Dows was the first to introduce into Europe soda-water drawn from marble fountains. He traveled for several years through France, Belgium, and Germany, advertising his business. While in Europe he learned the secret of making carbonated ginger ale, and was the first to bottle this favorite beverage in the United States. His success induced him to start business in England, and he established the firm of Dows, Clark & Van Winkle in London. For his products he received at various times in Europe and America over twenty medals at exhibitions. For some reason the business in Boston and London diminished, and other misfortunes crept in to discourage him. The five-story structure in Boston in which was his drug-store, said to be the finest in the country at the time, was destroyed by an explosion in May, 1875, and the building with all its fittings was a mass of ruins. Soon after this misfortune a severe cough and bronchial difficulty settled upon him and finally ended his life. Probably no man struggled harder with fate and fortune than G. D. Dows. He was kind and generous to a fault, exemplary in his private life and habits, and his hopeful spirit helped him through the many reverses of fortune he sustained.

Gustavus Davis Dows m. Dec. 31, 1854, in Lowell, Mass., MARY JANE, dau. of James and Elizabeth (Brown) BALLARD. She was b. June 23, 1834, in Litchfield, Me., and now res. 43 Concord square, Boston.

POTTER, who was b. in 1790, in England. Before he was four years old he was brought to America by a young married couple named Crumpton. It is said that Robert's father d. first, and his mother upon her death-bed gave him to Mrs. Crumpton, who had been a nurse in the family. Upon Robert's marriage to Nancy Newman he settled in Carthage, then little else than a great forest. He built a log-house, in which all his children were born. In course of time he cleared two hundred acres of land, erected a good house and large barns, and made what at his death was one of the best farms in Carthage. He was a stern, energetic man, whose thoughts were concentrated wholly in work, and consequently the children had small advantages educationally, the youngest son, Abial, excepted. Nancy (Newman) Potter was a woman of fine disposition, and her children recall nothing in memory of her but pleasant recollections. Robert Potter d. May, 1860, in Carthage.

EBENEZER NEWMAN, JR.[6], son of SARAH DOWS (172), was b. Feb. 17, 1792, in Deering, N. H., and was a farmer in Weld, Me. He moved with his family in 1834 to Galion, O., where he left them for the winter, and traveled on horseback to Chicago, Ill., which took forty days. Soon after returning to his family they concluded to go back to Maine, arriving at their former home July 3, 1835. About the year 1850 he again visited the West with his sons Liberty and Prescott, remaining about three months. The next year he and his son Liberty went West and settled, and later on his daus. Orpha and Sarah followed them. Ebenezer finally became a squatter on a farm in Minneapolis, Minn., and traveled often to Stillwater, Minn. On one of these journeys he was thrown from his carriage and fatally injured, dying three days afterwards, May 7, 1866.

JAMES DOWS[6], son of ELEAZER (193), was b. Oct. 19, 1807, in Charlton, N. Y., and d. Apr. 13, 1885, in Cazenovia, N. Y. The following sketch from the San Francisco Bulletin of Apr. 14, 1885, under the heading "An original figure in early history passes away," well illustrates the character of Mr. Dows:

"James Dows in many respects was a remarkable man; his figure and face had the lines of character and strength. The resemblance of Dows in physical organization and originality of ideas to Abraham Lincoln was often observed, yet the patient, gentle qualities that won for Lincoln the affectionate esteem of all who knew him well, were not so fully developed in Dows because his nature had not been tempered as Lincoln's had, in great places of public responsibility. Dows, however, was equal to any emergency presented in his own field of action. In the local affairs of California he manifested an apt intelligence that delighted and surprised whoever listened to his expositions. His oratory was not only entertaining for wit and illustration, but was always effective. He was decidedly an original thinker. Perhaps one of the most effective speeches ever made in San Francisco was the one delivered at Mercantile Library Hall, in opposition to the then pending congressional measure to give Goat Island to the Central Pacific R. R. Co. In the councils of the Vigilance Committee of 1856 he was recognized by the strong men in the lead of that organization as a man of ideas, whose opinion was safe to accept at critical moments. He fully comprehended the narrow line that existed between the redress of a popular wrong and the infliction of a popular outrage. Many of his contributions to the Bulletin were readable, and evinced the strong characteristics of the man. One of the most notable of his articles in this paper was the last, in which he reviewed the subject of Chinese immigration with vigor and intelligence."

He m. May 4, 1829, in Cazenovia, ELMINA, dau. of John and Amanda (Dyer) HEARSEY. She was b. Feb. 24, 1812, in Waterville, N. Y., and d. May 7, 1885, in Cazenovia.

He received an academical education, and was an attendant at the Protestant Episcopal church; was a forwarding and commission merchant, and had resided in Jamaica, Charlton, Albany, and Buffalo, N. Y., and in California. He was never an office-seeker — held but one office, and that was as alderman of the city of Utica; was a strong Union man and a prominent member of the Committee of Safety and Defense, and devoted time and money to the fitting out and transportation of volunteer regiments to the seat of war from 1861 to 1865. He was an adherent of the whig party, and a strong republican from the birth of that party until he died. He was one of the California pioneers of 1849–51, and was an Odd Fellow. As was written of him in the obituary notice published in a Utica paper, "He was a good citizen, a man of strict integrity, a noble father, a true friend, and an honor to the community in which he so many years has been a resident."

Mr. Babcock is a taxidermist and naturalist of considerable note, his chief departments being ornithology and entomology. Under the auspices of the Natural History Society of Natick, Mass., on Nov. 13, 1872, accompanied by his wife, he sailed from Boston for the port of Georgetown, British Guiana, for the purpose of collecting material for this society and for himself. After a rough and stormy passage they arrived at Georgetown, Dec. 13, 1872. Here the scene that met their eyes, to use his own words, "was enchanting beyond description." The Cocoa Palms, the Royal Palm, and thousands of other forms of tropical vegetation were to be seen. On landing they were delighted with the appearance of nature in these regions. They found the Botanical Garden to contain many very fine tropical plants and flowers. The Museum also had a large and beautiful collection of specimens from the surrounding country. In Georgetown many different nations are represented. During their residence he made many collections in the departments previously mentioned, and then made a trip to the interior, where they lived for three months among the Accawai Indians. Making their headquarters at a village of these Indians, whom they found to be exceptionally honest and moral, excursions were made into the surrounding country, and large collections of birds and insects were made.

The scenery in this section is described as being very beautiful. The tree ferns, many species of palms, orchids, with forest vines, or bush ropes as they are called, linking the trees together and growing sometimes in remarkable shapes or contortions, are noticeable features.

They spent the winter of 1879–80 in Florida, their headquarters being the city of Jacksonville. After visiting some general points of interest near the city, trips were made up the St. John's river, creeks explored, and collections made which, though large, were not equal to those gathered in South America.

Mr. Babcock's museum at Sherborn, Mass., is well worth visiting. It contains between eight and ten thousand specimens, including birds, — nearly half of which are from South America,— reptiles, fishes, and mammals from foreign and native localities. Insects and shells abound in thousands. There are also botanical specimens, minerals, and fossils; and weapons, implements, and ornaments of the South American Indians.

In Oct., 1887, the compiler, with his wife, visited this museum, and enjoyed several hours of pleasant conversation with Mr. Babcock, and listened with interest to his description of the many varieties of birds, insects, etc., therein contained.

ELIZA DOWSE[6], dau. of JAMES (214), was b. Apr. 29, 1801, in Sherborn, Mass., and d. Jan. 2, 1884, in Natick, Mass. She m. Aug. 31, 1831, in New York city, FRED DELEVAN, son of Anthony and Jane (Farrington) VALENTINE. He was b. Mar. 12, 1805, in East Chester, N. Y.; was a shoemaker in Natick, and d. Nov. 30, 1885, in New York.

Mrs. Eliza (Dowse) Valentine was a woman of rare natural endowments, deeply poetic by nature, and had great strength of character, a broad Christian charity, and an unwavering faith. She was a tender, patient, loving mother, a faithful wife, and a true and loyal friend. She was for many years an invalid and great sufferer, but was uncomplaining; always finding much for which to be grateful, frequently asserting that her blessings outnumbered her trials. She loved and trusted her Saviour to the end, and he did not forsake her.

As is seen by the record, she had three pairs of twins, which fact made her quite distinguished among women. On this account her uncle, Thomas Dowse (216), who, like herself, was lame, gave her by will a much larger sum of money than his other nephews and nieces, except Thomas Dowse (786), who was named after him.

The following poems by Eliza (Dowse) Valentine,—the first written before her marriage, the second a few years before her death,—show her talent in that direction:

THE LOVE OF JESUS.

Oh! is there aught can soothe the breast,—
Or heal the heart with grief oppressed,—
Or give the mourning pilgrim rest?
Yes; 't is the love of Jesus.

And what can make the bosom glow
With love to all, both friend and foe?
And make our tears to cease their flow?
It is the love of Jesus.

And what can light the hour of death,
When called to yield our parting breath,
And bid adieu to all the earth?
The precious love of Jesus.

Eliza Dowse, 1824.

FOURSCORE.

This is my eightieth birthday!
I 've tarried long below,
And but for leaving dear ones,
'T were beautiful to go.
My kin have mostly left me,
And crossed the mystic stream,
And loving friends have passed away,
And life seems like a dream.

I 've passed thro' years of suffering,
And grief has been my lot;
But still the earth seems beautiful,
There 's many a sun-lit spot.
And though my frame is tottering,—
My blood is growing cold,—
Youth sits enshrined within my heart.
That never will grow old.

I grieve not that my locks are white,
My brow thus wrinkled o'er;
For I shall gain immortal youth,
When on the other shore.
I 'll not regret my years have fled
And life's sunset draws nigh,
For pain and grief will ne'er invade
The peaceful home on high.

There 's much that 's very beautiful,
This spring-time of the year:
The grass grows green, the swelling buds,
And flowers will soon appear.
I 've children kind and loving,
And of cherished friends a host,
But all may soon be gathered home —
May none of them be lost!

My fourscore years are over;
I 'm almost at the gate,
Waiting! But then I think I 've read,
"They also serve who wait."
And when our loving Father
Shall summon me above,
Earth's wrongs will all be righted
In that home of light and love.

Address, box 1,206, Natick.

877 vii. FREDERICK TOWNSEND [twin], b. Sept. 1, 1839, in Natick, where he is a shoemaker, and where he m. Aug. 5, 1863, MIRIAM CAROLINE, dau. of Moses and Martha (Whitney) STRATTON. She was b. Oct. 2, 1841, in Natick, where she d. Aug. 21, 1874. No chn. Mr. Valentine inherited his mother's poetic talent, and though not a frequent writer, yet has written several excellent poems. He was a most excellent husband; his wife being an invalid, and a great sufferer for many years. He took the place of nurse by her bed-side, caring for her with great tenderness, and attending, at the same time, to all the household duties, and to his work in the shop. How he endured the strain is a marvel. His own health was injured, however, and he has never fully recovered. He is a member of the Baptist church.

May, 1848, in Stillwater, ELIZA, dau. of James and Jane (Simpson) MIDDLETON. She was b. in 1814, in Londonderry, Ire., and is a sister to the wife of Benjamin Joy Masterman (470).

In 1845 Albion Masterman pre-empted 120 acres of government land in Stillwater, the pre-emption fee taking his last cent. But in a short time $100 was sent him by his father, with which money he built a small board shanty and commenced breaking land. At the end of the pre-emption year he borrowed $150 on a note and paid $1.25 per acre, government price for the land. It was some years before he saved money enough, by hard work and frugality, to pay the note, but from that time on he prospered well, and at the time of his death was said to be worth nearly $50,000. Though never a church-member, he was always a devoted observer of the law and a rigid adherent of the truth; and it was the universal remark—"Albion Masterman's word is as good as his note."

CLARA ELIZA DOWS[7], dau. of CALVIN (282), was b. Mar. 5, 1847, in Boston, Mass., and d. Feb. 14, 1879, in Lowell, Mass. Very early in life she manifested a desire for study, especially for history and mathematics. She rarely failed in any study. Botany was also a favorite study, and her love for flowers showed itself both in rearing them and in her paintings. She was the first to decorate letter-paper, envelopes, albums, etc., in Boston. In 1863–64 B. B. Russell & Co. and David H. Brown, old-established houses on Cornhill, took samples of her work which she had done in water-colors without the aid of a teacher. Through them she received large orders for such work. Her health failing in 1878, she went to Wisconsin, and also to Minnesota, for a change of air. After eight months' absence she returned home, and in eight weeks she died of consumption. She left behind her, as a legacy to her friends, a beautiful Christian character. Her resignation to the Divine will, her simple and abiding trust, with the fortitude and patience she exhibited in her sufferings, made her last days a power and her memory a benediction.

She m. Apr. 7, 1867, in Lowell, as his second wife, EDWARD, son of John Trull BAILEY of Andover, Mass. He was b. in Andover; is a mechanic, and resided for many years in West Medford, Mass.

CHILD OF EDWARD AND CLARA ELIZA (DOWS) BAILEY.

1198 i. NELLIE ISABEL[8], b. June 12, d. July 15, 1877, in West Medford, Mass.

Mrs. Bailey was clearly a student of Nature. Her thoughts found expression in the painting of flowers and scenery, and in the making of wax-flowers, shaping them after the natural ones in her garden, and also in poetry, of which the following lines from her pen are only a few:

THE GOLDEN RULE.

"Do unto others as you would
That others do unto you."
It means, I think, to all be good;
To every one give his due.

If you see a stranger in distress,
Just think if it were you;
And surely you can do no less
Than give a kind word or two.

A gentle act, a kindly word,
The result we may never know;
'T is strange how few of them are heard
In our daily walk below.

If we all would follow this "Golden Rule,"
And do little deeds of love,
This world would be a better school
For the brighter world above.

Then scatter kind words,—do deeds of love,—
As the world you go traveling through;
You 'll be better prepared for the one above,
And you will be happier, too.

BOSTON, 1870.

Copy of a letter written in Wisconsin by Mrs. Clara E. (Dows) Bailey to her sister, Mrs. Alfred Brown, Lowell, Mass., in the year 1878:

Do you remember our old homestead,
With its walls so dark and gray,
With the elm tree hanging o'er it,
Where we children used to play?
With the bright clouds sailing o'er us,
And we, swinging up so high,
That we thought when cousin pushed us
We could almost touch the sky?

Dost remember in the spring-time
Our sweet "cowslip corner" bright,
Where we used to roam in day-time,
And dream about at night;
And the sweetest of blue violets
That grew just on the hill,
With the sweet fern all around them,
And the bits of bright lambkill?

And in hot and sultry summer,
When we were so tired and dry,
Of our rocky, cool "Shedd pasture,"
With its tiny fall, close by?
Ah! the taste of that sweet water
Is far sweeter still to me
Than the richest, sparkling nectar
Ever brought across the sea.

And in autumn 't was the orchard
Where we used to wend our way,
Half the time in earnest working,
Half the time in merry play,
With the woods in their bright glory,
With the fields of golden grain
Stretching over hill and meadow,
That seemed to us a vast domain.

Even in winter it was pleasant,
For we all were playing still
By the "brook rock" in the meadow,
Or coasting down the hill.
Now we all are grown-up daughters,
And with children of our own.
Will they find a better play-ground
Than this was at our old home?

And, Belle, do you remember,
As we roamed the woods in spring,
Or husked the corn in winter,
What bright glances we would fling
O'er the pathway of our future,
Building castles bright and gay?
They have reached a bright fulfilment,
You and I can truly say.

Fifteen years, with swift feet passing,
Since that happy, merry day,
And the old home now is crumbling,—
All is going to decay.
But the pleasures of our childhood,
Though the half can ne'er be told,
All are written in our memories
In lines of living gold.

A few rods from where Mrs. Bailey was living in Menominee, Wis., a man built, some years previous, a temporary saw-mill, which, for some reason, had gone to decay. Mrs. Bailey used often to walk over there, gather ferns and flowers,—"rest and dream" of the old eastern home, as she expressed it. This was only a few months before her return home to Lowell in 1878:

THE OLD TURBINE WHEEL.

I sit and dream the hours away!
How many Time doth steal!
While listening to the whisperings
Of the old turbine wheel,
I fancy it is telling me,
In accents quaint and low,
A story of the happenings
Of times so long ago.
And I see within this dreamland
The flash of waters bright,
With the hum of saws and workmen,
Where now 't is still as night;
For there 's nothing now but ruins
Beside the brooklet's flow,
Ferns and grasses overgrowing
Footprints of that long ago.
So I waken from my dreaming,
In this land of woe and weal,
And find nothing but the echo
Of the old turbine wheel.

Mrs. Bailey was fond of puzzles, enigmas, etc. The following is an answer to the puzzle written for the Christian Era by Mrs. L. S. Goodwin of Boston:

THE PUZZLE.

A New-Testament hero—pray, tell us his name.
(Sometimes unto this was appended another.)
See, here is a riddle: Take out of the middle
A letter, you leave it a mountain of fame.
Beside it take other,—like brother and brother,—
A desert you have through which Israel came.
No contemptible act, since the first you extract,
Is a thousand as much as 't is one, even so;
The last oft we borrow to vent joy or sorrow.
What now is the name you are seeking to know?

THE ANSWER.

Simon, as Simon Barjona was known,
Till Christ called him Peter, which means a stone;
Now the whole name of the Jew I 've shown.
Here is the riddle, take M from the middle
And Sion is surely the mountain of fame.
As O is now left to take from the name,
Sin is the desert through which Israel came.
M for one thousand always will stand.
O expresses joy or grief through the land.

ROBERT POTTER, JR.[7], son of NANCY NEWMAN (287), was b. Nov. 4, 1817, in Carthage, Me., where he lived until he reached his majority. Having no taste for farming, he traded in various kinds of goods such as peddlers carry, and money being scarce, he exchanged his goods for furs, dried apples, and paper-rags. He followed this occupation for several years after his marriage, until he removed to Hallowell, Me., where he took charge of a large boarding-house. This having too many cares for his wife with a family of four children, he removed to Weld, Me., and for some years was in the employ of Hiram Holt, assorting wool. Mr. Potter became very robust, was over six feet in height, and weighed 240 pounds. He was able to lift more than any one else around. One hot July day he drank too much cold water, was seized with colic, and nearly lost his life. He never regained his former health. He next bought a farm in Weld, was elected to the legislature in 1853, soon removed to Wilton, Me., where he opened a country store, and also dealt extensively in horses and cattle. In 1863 he went to Portland, Me., leased a hotel and there remained until the death of his second wife in 1868, then retired and spent the winter in Chicago, buying dressed hogs and poultry and shipping them East for market. He continued in various speculations until 1874, when being affected with a bronchial trouble, he went to Denver, Col., with his youngest daughter, Lunette. Here he invested in real estate, and traveled through California, returning East in 1876. He continued in speculation more or less until his death. He was a man of sound judgment, of a noble and kind-hearted disposition. He was thrown from his carriage on July 22, 1882, causing a fracture of the spinal column, death following soon.

He m. (1) in Carthage, Me., MARY WINSLOW, dau. of Nathaniel and Sarah A. (Carver) NOYES. She was b. Apr. 10, 1820, either in Unity or Jay, Me. He m. (2) Jan. 5, 1862, in Boston, Mass., MARY, dau. of Silas MCLAUGHLIN of Weld, Me. She d. Oct., 1868, in Portland, Me.

July 3, 1827, in Cazenovia. His father, the Hon. Charles Stebbins, was state senator from Cazenovia from 1825 to 1829, and bank commissioner from 1830 to 1840. His grandfather on his mother's side was the Hon. Josiah Masters, member of congress from Rensselaer Co., and also for many years first judge of the Court of Common Pleas of that county.

Charles, jr., was grad. from Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y., 1846; was admitted to the bar in 1849, and entered upon the practice of law at Cazenovia in 1851. He won a high rank in his profession as a well-informed, discreet, and judicious counsellor, and, like his father, occupied a prominent place at the bar of central New York. In 1871 he was appointed a commissioner to revise the statutes of the state of New York, which position he held till Jan. 1, 1875, when he resigned to accept the responsible position of private secretary to Hon. Samuel J. Tilden, governor of the state of New York.

Mr. Stebbins has never sought any office, but has held local offices crowded upon him by his fellow-townsmen. In character he is very firm, yet unobtrusive, has the faculty of reading men at a glance, and is rarely mistaken in his conclusions. He is kind and genial in manner, is of medium height, of a nervous, sanguine temperament, and has a tough physical organization. His portrait is to be found in Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper of July 24, 1875.

He was a lineal descendant of Thomas Holbrook, who settled in South Sherborn in 1652. At the age of twenty-two he went to Boston, Mass., where he was engaged in business with more or less success for thirty years. Upon the death of his father he returned to Sherborn, bought out the other heirs, and settled upon the old homestead, devoted his time to farming and running the grist- and saw-mills upon the place. Soon after his return to Sherborn he began the manufacture of refined cider, and his business so increased in a few years that he transferred it to Albany, N. Y. He finally returned to Sherborn and erected a large cider-mill near the railroad, which by his enterprise had been run through his land. When his sons became of age they were taken into partnership, and the company of Holbrook & Sons are said to be the largest manufacturers of cider in the world. Mr. Holbrook was instrumental in securing the fund for the "Sawin Academy," of which he was trustee for life. He represented the town in the general court, and filled many town offices. He was liberal with his wealth, giving to all worthy applicants and many charitable objects of the day.

THOMAS DOWSE[7], son of SAMUEL (352), was b. May 10, 1833, in Oxford, Mass., and is a real-estate dealer in Duluth, Minn. He has most superbly finished offices on the ground floor of Fargusson Block, at 402 West Superior st. His business, founded in 1870, has now grown to be very large, and extends to all parts of the United States. Taking advantage of the low price of real estate during the panic of 1873, Mr. Dowse has not only become prosperous himself, but has contributed very largely to the growth of Duluth by his glowing pictures of the advantages of the place, and has induced many to settle there. Mr. Dowse has not confined his efforts to Duluth, however, but has greatly assisted in building up other parts of the North-west by bringing the attention of capitalists to the future benefits to be derived from investments in that fertile section of the country. In 1876 he was secretary of the St. Paul Chamber of Commerce, and later was connected with the land department of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway.

Mr. Dowse is author of a great many books, pamphlets, and speeches relating to Duluth and the North-west, which have achieved a very wide circulation, at least 800,000 copies of them having been printed and distributed. Of his book on "Manitoba and the Canadian North-west Territories," 183,000 copies were distributed, and his work on Montana went through two editions, embracing 60,000 copies. His address, prepared for the Water-ways convention at St. Paul in 1885, was published in full in nine different papers, circulating 100,000 or more copies. He also wrote an article on the grain trade of Duluth, which was widely circulated. In 1879 Mr. Dowse delivered an address before the Chicago Board of Trade on "Our North-west," which was widely published; one before the Minneapolis Board of Trade on "The Real North-west," of which over 25,000 copies were distributed; and also addresses on the North-west before the Milwaukee Chamber of Commerce, the Philadelphia Board of Trade, and other associations. Mr. Dowse's record for the best general and public benefit of Duluth and its sympathetic section has been most honorable and exemplary.

EDMUND DOWSE[7], son of BENJAMIN (363), was b. Sept. 17, 1813, in Sherborn, Mass., where he attended the public schools. He fitted for college at the "Old Wrentham Academy," Wrentham, Mass., where George V. N. Lothrop, our present (1888) minister to Russia, was among his school-mates. In 1836 he was grad. B. A. from Amherst College, in the same class with the late Hon. Ensign Kellogg of Pittsfield, Mass.; the late Gov. Alexander H. Bullock, who was his college room-mate; Roswell D. Hitchcock, D. D., of Union Theological Seminary, New York city; the late Dr. Nathan Allen of Lowell, Mass., a writer on medical topics, whose name is familiar in Europe and America; and Stuart Robinson, D. D., one of the leading divines of the Presbyterian chr. in America. Soon after graduation Dr. Dowse studied theology with the late Dr. Jacob Ide of Medway, Mass., and was ordained and settled Oct. 10, 1838, as pastor of the Pilgrim Chr., with which he united in his youth.

Rev. A. H. Coolidge of Leicester, Mass., contributes the following: "The circumstances of the settlement and long pastorate of Dr. Dowse are quite remarkable and perhaps unique, and are alike creditable to pastor and people. He was a native of Sherborn, and his whole life has been passed there. He was well known by all the people. His venerable and saintly grandfather, Dea. Dowse, his father and mother, and other members of the family were members of the congregation and church under his pastoral care. His young wife was also a native and resident of the town. She was a beautiful singer, a woman of superior character, much beloved by all, and is still remembered with respect and affection. Her early death was mourned by all the people, adults and children alike.

"The time of Dr. Dowse's settlement was regarded as a somewhat delicate and critical period in the history of the church. It was far from strong in numbers or in means; the unhappy relations occasioned by the separation of the church from the Unitarian society had not yet been healed; the church was somewhat divided in opinion, though not in feeling, in relation to the controversy between the old- and the new-school theology; the temperance agitation was then awakening the interest of the people, and they were earnestly discussing the momentous question of American slavery, and not altogether in accord with reference to the most desirable method of its treatment by the pulpit. At such a time, when these important and exciting questions, upon which there were wide differences of opinion and feeling, were under earnest discussion, when portentous 'events' were casting 'their shadows before,' the selection of a pastor was a more than usually delicate undertaking. Qualities were needed which are not often combined. It was important that the candidate for the office should be a man of ability and energy, abreast with the advanced movements of the time, but not radical, positive but judicious, true to principle but practical, in a word endowed with sound common-sense and Christian grace. It was a rare expression of confidence in the youthful candidate, so thoroughly known, so identified with all the interests of the community, when he was selected pastor of the church.

"It is perhaps enough to say of Dr. Dowse, while living, that the people have never had occasion to regret their choice. These qualities, together with his manly, Christian character, his genial, friendly, and sympathetic spirit, have been in a large degree sources, on his part, of the success and harmony of his ministry of more than half a century."*

With his father and grandfather among his parishioners, he has been associated with the christenings, marriages, and deaths of several generations of descendants of Eleazer Dows (152), and after the form of Dr. Dowse shall have passed from earthly sight, his kind and genial face will long be remembered by many of the now young readers of this work.

Rev. Edmund Dowse has always taken an active interest in educational matters. He has served fifty years as member of the school committee of Sherborn, and it was largely through his influence that the Dowse High School of the same place was founded from funds contributed by Thomas Dowse (216). He was a chaplain of the Christian Commission in the Civil war, in the army of the Cumberland and Tennessee. He was a member of the Massachusetts Senate in 1869 and 1870. The degree of D. D. was conferred upon him, June, 1886, by his alma mater, Amherst College.

The semi-centennial anniversary of Dr. Dowse's ordination and installation as pastor of the Pilgrim Chr. in Sherborn was fittingly observed Oct. 10, 1888. Rev. A. H. Coolidge of Leicester, who participated, contributes the following account: "The day was delightful. The celebration was opened with a salute of fifty guns by a battery from Natick, manned by veteran soldiers of the Civil war. A large concourse filled the meeting-house. It was composed of present and former members of the church and society, many representatives of the ministry, members of the state senate, of which Dr. Dowse had been chaplain in nine consecutive sessions, and other personal friends. The society and friends had made every provision for the success and enjoyment of the celebration. Gilmore's Orchestra, and Mrs. Jennie Patrick Walker as vocal soloist, added greatly to the character and pleasure of the occasion. A bountiful collation was served in the town hall. The services occupied the morning and afternoon, and there was also a reception, with addresses, in the evening. An interesting feature of the anniversary was the presence of the six longest settled active Congregational pastors of the state. Rev. E. E. Sturgis, D. D., of Natick presided. The opening address of welcome, in behalf of the church and people, was by Rev. A. H. Coolidge, pastor of the First Congregational Chr. in Leicester for thirty-one years, but for nineteen years before his ordination one of Dr. Dowse's people. Dr. Dowse responded in an appropriate and appreciative address. The impression made by him upon those present is truthfully given in a report of the press: 'In appearance Mr. Dowse gives but little indication of the touch of passing years. His voice filled without effort the spacious house. His discourse was given in the impressive, earnest, yet cheerful way with which most of his hearers had been familiar for many a long year. He was warmly applauded at its close.'

"Rev. D. S. Talcott, D. D., Dr. Dowse's predecessor, and afterward professor of sacred literature in Bangor Theological Seminary, was present and spoke tenderly of the past. Addresses were also made by other clergymen, by representatives of the senate, and by class-mates of Dr. Dowse. Hon. G. C. Crocker of the state senate, after characterizing Dr. Dowse as a model chaplain, who prayed not at, but for, his hearers, presented him a generous sum of money, as an expression of regard from his senatorial friends. Rev. Edward Strong, D. D., performed a similar graceful act in behalf of friends in the neighboring towns. In responding, Dr. Dowse, standing with a purse in each hand, said that both his hands and his heart were full. Dr. Dowse entered thus upon the second half century of his ministry with renewed vigor, and with the congratulations and best wishes of all his friends."

NATHANIEL HENRY CRAFTS[7], son of EUNICE DOWSE (364), was b. Mar. 15, 1828, in Watertown, Mass., where he attended the common schools; "left off" when sixteen years old, and worked for his bro. Joseph at wool-pulling, wool-sorting, wool-washing, etc., until 1849, during which time he qualified himself in algebra, geometry, trigonometry, and surveying sufficiently to enter a surveyor's or engineer's office. In June, 1849, he entered the office of Wm. S. Whitwell, who was the chief engineer of the eastern division of the Boston water-works, which were nearly completed at that time. In 1849 he was employed a part of the time on the Beacon Hill and South Boston reservoirs, and in 1850 on the extension of the works to East Boston. In 1851 the office of city engineer and general superintendent of the water-works in Boston was first established, and E. S. Chesbrough, chief engineer of the western division of the same, was elected to the office. Mr. Crafts remained with Mr. Chesbrough until the latter left to assume a similar position in Chicago in 1855, and James Slade was appointed his successor, which office he held until 1864, when he was succeeded by Mr. Crafts as city engineer. This office he held until Dec., 1872.

The most important works accomplished during Mr. Crafts' service as city engineer were the building of the Chestnut Hill reservoir; the extension of the works into Roxbury and Dorchester; the establishment of separate high-service works for the high grounds in Roxbury, Dorchester, South Boston, and Beacon Hill; the cutting down of Fort Hill, and the raising of the Church-st. and Suffolk-st. districts. Since his resignation of the office of city engineer Mr. Crafts has been employed for advice and consultation by other cities and towns in relation to public water supplies and sewerage, and also as engineer of construction.

Mr. Crafts was originally a free-soiler and is now a republican. He is a Free Mason and member of the Boston Society of Civil Engineers. He res. at 140 Seaver st., Roxbury district of Boston, Mass. He m. Nov.

CHILDREN OF SAMUEL AND MARY SUMNER (WILLIAMS) LANGLEY.

1918 i. SAMUEL PIERPONT[9], b. Aug. 22, 1834, in Roxbury, Mass., is unmarried and res. in Allegheny, Penn. He is a man of very strong mental capacity, of a deep, penetrating mind, and has spent many years of usefulness in that department of astronomy known as "Celestial Physics." Receiving his early education in the Boston schools, he spent most of his time until thirty years of age in the practice of civil engineering and architecture.

In 1864, in company with his bro. John W. Langley, he visited Europe, and by keen observation learned much that was afterwards of practical value to him.

In 1865, he entered Harvard College Observatory, as an assistant, but was soon after appointed assistant professor of mathematics in the U. S. Navy, and assigned to duty at the Annapolis Naval Academy. In 1867 he was made director of the Allegheny Observatory, which overlooks the Ohio river, from one of the high hills near Pittsburgh, Penn., and this position he still holds.

The time-service now universal in the United States was undoubtedly inaugurated on its present practical standing by Prof. Langley. It is true that time had been occasionally communicated to the public by other observatories, but the extended connection with railroads, cities, and the public generally, now so common throughout the country, was originated as a system at the Allegheny Observatory in 1869.

He has been a contributor to the Atlantic Monthly, Century, and other magazines and papers. He has visited Europe five times. During his last visit, in 1885, he lectured before the Royal Institution of Great Britain. He has received gold and silver medals from the Royal Society of Great Britain, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and the "Henry Draper" gold medal from the National Academy of Sciences, in 1885.

The degree of LL. D. was conferred upon him by the University of Wisconsin in 1882, by the University of Michigan in 1883, and by Harvard University at its bi-centennial celebration in 1887. He received the degree of Ph. D. from the Stevens Institution of Technology in 1882. In Jan., 1887, his duties were increased by accepting the office of assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D. C., and upon the death of Prof. Baird, in the fall of 1887, he was appointed secretary, which office he still holds.

Prof. Langley is a member of the following societies: American Philosophical Society (Apr. 16, 1875); the National Academy of Sciences (Apr. 19, 1876); associate fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences (Feb. 14, 1883); and in Europe, of the Astronomische Gesselschaft (Sept. 14, 1871); honorary member of La Societe de Physique et d'Histoire Naturelle de Geneve (Mar. 20, 1879); corresponding member of the British Association for the Advancement of Science (Nov. 28, 1882); associate of the Royal Astronomical Society (Dec. 14, 1883), and honorary member of the Manchester Literary and Philosophical Society (Apr. 19, 1887). He was elected a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in 1869, was advanced to the grade of fellow in 1874, and at the Buffalo, N. Y., meeting of this association, held in 1886, was elected president, presiding at the great meeting held at Columbia College, New York city, in 1887.

CHANDLER ROBBINS[8], son of ABBA DOWSE (374), was b. Feb. 14, 1810, in Lynn, Mass., was fitted for college under private tutors, entered Harvard College in 1825, and grad. with excellent rank in the notable class of 1829. His scholarship in all branches was good, but he excelled as a writer and speaker, and his discussions with class-mates were ably handled. After graduating, he entered Cambridge Theological School, from which he grad. in 1833.

On the 4th of December of the same year, he was ordained pastor of the Second Church (Unitarian) in Boston, as successor to Ralph Waldo Emerson, with a salary of $1,600 the first year, increased to $1,800 the second year, to $2,000 the fourth year, and to $2,500 in 1854. Three years later it was raised to $3,000, and in 1865, at the close of the Civil war, it was made $3,500. This shows to what extent Mr. Robbins' labors were valued by his people.

He visited Europe twice to recover impaired health; the first time in 1839, and later in 1853, traveling through England, Scotland, Ireland, and France.

Soon after his second marriage he tendered his resignation as pastor of the chr. in which he had labored so long. This resignation was accepted "to take effect on the fourth of December, 1874, the forty-first anniversary of his settlement." He was then the oldest settled clergyman in Boston proper. He had but one pastorate, though he preached in five successive church edifices and in four temporary places of worship. After preaching the sermon at the dedication of the new church on Boylston street, he did not again appear in the pulpit, except occasionally in Weston, Mass., the place of his summer home.

In 1870 he received a sharp blow upon the right eyebrow, from an open door. The blow affected the optic nerve of one eye and soon the other also, so that in 1877 he became almost blind, and from this time on his strength began to fail. He d. at his summer home on the 11th of September, 1882, after a short illness.

From a memoir prepared by Charles C. Smith, treasurer of the Mass. Hist. Society, and delivered at the December (1883) meeting of the society, the following facts are gleaned:

In 1834 he was Chaplain of the Massachusetts Senate, and in 1845 Chaplain of the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

In 1836 he preached the Artillery Election Sermon. From Jan., 1837, to Apr., 1839, he was editor of the Christian Register, and during the same years he was one of the executive committee of the American Unitarian Association. He was also author of three of the tracts issued by the association at a later period, beside contributing to other denominational publications.

He was an officer of the Mass. Cong. Charitable Society, of the Mass. Evangelical Missionary Society, and of the Society for the Relief of Aged and Infirm Ministers; and from 1862 to 1872 he was president of the Benevolent Fraternity of Churches. In 1855 he received from Harvard College the honorary degree of D. D.

Dr. Robbins was chosen a member of the Mass. Hist. Society in Dec., 1845, a member of the American Antiquarian Society in Oct., 1857, and a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences in Nov., 1858. He was a member of the standing committee of the Mass. Hist. Society from 1854 to 1857, recording secretary from 1857 to 1864, and corresponding secretary from 1864 to 1877. While connected with the latter society he wrote much matter of historical interest, contributing several memoirs and rendering much valuable aid in connection with the publication of the Mather Papers, in which he attempted to correct what he termed erroneous views in regard to the character of Increase and Cotton Mather. Though Dr. Robbins' historical work was chiefly in connection with the Mass. Hist. Society, he wrote and published the "History of the Second Chr., or Old North, in Boston," to which is added a "History of the New Brick Chr." He also edited the works of his predecessor, Henry Ware, jr., D. D.

He was somewhat of a hymn-writer; one of his hymns, beginning, "Lo! the day of rest declineth," is found in many collections. The number of his publications was about forty, exclusive of periodical literature, and consisted of about twenty sermons, several discourses and addresses, the tracts, memoirs, and other works previously mentioned.

The character of Dr. Robbins is well shown in his writings. He was the soul of integrity, and though often showing much sternness and firmness of purpose, he was withal a most kind-hearted and benevolent person. By nature he was sympathetic, and he had the ease and grace of manner characteristic of his mother. His loss was felt not only by those of his own denomination, but by all who had met him in the meetings of the Mass. Hist. Society or elsewhere.

On the evening of the 31st of December, 1882, a memorial discourse was preached in the Second Church, by Rev. Andrew C. Peabody, D. D., one of his associates, who had known him from early life. SAMUEL DOWSE ROBBINS[8], son of ABBA DOWSE (374), was b. Mar. 7, 1812, in Lynn, Mass.; was grad. at Cambridge Divinity School in 1833, and was ordained pastor of the Unitarian Chr. in Lynn, Nov. 13, of the same year.

He became minister of the Unitarian society in Chelsea, Mass., in 1840, and removed to Concord, Mass., for rest in 1850, to the great regret of the friends of the Chelsea chr. In 1854 he was ordained minister in Framingham, Mass., where he held a life settlement; next settled in Wayland, Mass., in 1867, and in 1873 he gave up his chr. and lived in Belmont, Mass., to the time of his death, which occurred Aug. 17, 1884.

Mr. Robbins received the degree of A. M. from Harvard College in 1863. His sermons were remarkable for a clear, strong style, conservative in theology, like those of his bro., Rev. Chandler Robbins, dwelling on the Divinity of Christ.

He has published but little, yet from time to time has sent to the magazines and papers numerous hymns and poems of great excellence. Says Dr. Alfred Putnam, in a notice of Mr. Robbins in "Hymns and Songs of the Liberal Faith," "They are full of a devout and tender sentiment, and are finely expressive of Christian trust and love, and have met a warm response in the hearts of many readers."

VELZORA MASTERMAN[8], dau. of James, jr. (426), was b. Mar. 24, 1841, in Dixfield, Me., where she m. (1) Mar. 15, 1855, Stillman Masterman (482). He was b. Jan. 28, 1831, in Weld, Me., where he d. July 19, 1863.

The following outline was rendered by Mrs. David Masterman of Weld: Stillman Masterman will rank among the great natural scholars of his time — he was one to whom knowledge in his chosen sphere came readily. Although he died comparatively young, he was widely known in America and also abroad. He was quiet and unassuming — seemingly never exalted because of his superior talents; ever ready to converse with those around him upon any educational topic, and was thus the means of imparting much information to his neighbors and acquaintances.

At the age of ten years began his thirst for knowledge. Every book which treated at all of the geography of the earth was read and digested with eagerness. He was greatly interested in the great comet of 1843, watching it from 9 A. M. until near sunset, Feb. 28th, and with this began his interest in astronomical studies. A neighbor's library furnished him with some volumes treating on astronomy, and all his "spending money" was invested in books on this subject. He attended high school only six weeks; his education was obtained at home. He felt that it was time wasted to go through a collegiate course. He said he could learn all that was needful in one year, but such a course the faculty would not allow. He mastered the languages and sciences, always carrying with him a book to the field or elsewhere, often becoming so deeply absorbed in his book as to forget his work and surroundings, when his father would send him home to study. He loved to spend the night in taking observations of the heavens, and made for himself a telescope with three glasses to aid him in his study. This instrument is now owned by Mrs. B. B. Russell, Cornhill, Boston.

At the age of twenty he had managed to collect a number of scientific and classical works, and had thus become familiar with the elements of physics and chemistry, making such apparatus as the materials at hand would permit. About this time he went to the newly-opened territory of Minnesota, but after a little more than a year he returned to his native place, with health much impaired.

He was a natural astronomer and an expert mathematician, calculating the time of several eclipses, and of a total eclipse of the sun, predicting its occurrence six years before. He had an exceedingly retentive memory, and had to read an article through but once to learn its substance. As a mathematician he was particularly noted. Prof. B. A. Gould of Cambridge Observatory sent to Stillman a nautical almanac of the coast survey for correction. It was a large volume, and three weeks of close application were given to the task of correcting and proving the work. Afterwards, in the fall of 1861, he was again employed by Prof. Gould to assist him in reducing the observations made at the Washington Observatory while it was under the charge of Maury, and remaining as left by the observers. He continued at this labor until the winter of 1863, when failing health compelled him to desist. The professor had implicit faith in his work, and Stillman became a great favorite with him, although in his employ only a short time. His services were so highly esteemed that at his death Prof. Gould sent a valuable memento of his regard to Stillman's wife.

He became a frequent contributor to the Smithsonian Reports, American Journal of Science, Astronomical Journal, and other scientific journals. He left an unfinished work on Astronomy, having taken many careful observations, noting the position, motion, etc., of the heavenly bodies. In these observations he made a number of new discoveries which doubtless would have proved valuable, had he lived to complete his work and publish it. Several books on science were shipped him from Germany, but they did not arrive until shortly after his death. His life-work was hardly begun when death took him, yet he said, "It is all right; it is no worse for me to die than for any other man." His last hours were spent in prayer. He extolled God in the highest terms; language failed to express the love, gratitude, and praise which he felt. He thanked God fervently that his pen had written naught against the Creator. A little later, and his spirit had fled, and the great mind was at rest.

Several years before his death he built a small house near to that of David Masterman, and in this house he lived, excepting the short time he was in the employ of Prof. Gould.

Prof. Hill, the phrenologist, made careful inquiry concerning Stillman's mother. He found that a short time before the birth of Stillman, she had lost two small children, and in her endeavor to free her mind somewhat from its burden of grief she would wander out in the evening to study the heavens and meditate upon God's great and wonderful works, and thus was formed the remarkable talent so extraordinarily developed in her offspring.

of Samuel and Caroline (Kates) WAGNER of Ohio. She was b. Feb. 23, 1854.

In 1873, Mr. Dowse sold out, and with his wife's family emigrated in primitive style to the interior of Nebraska. They were the first white settlers at Douglass Grove, Custer co. The nearest railroad points — Grand Island and Kearney on the U. P. R. R. — were seventy-five miles away, and the nearest post-office twenty-five miles. Three branches of the Loup river, each about fifteen miles apart, flowed through this fine, fertile, rolling prairie region. Mr. Dowse chose the valley of the Middle Loup and built his house upon a bluff overlooking the river and commanding an extensive view of prairie land, where moose, elk, deer, and other animals of the plain roamed at will, hitherto undisturbed by man. Other settlers soon followed and made homes in this land of promise, and in a short time the colony numbered several hundred. Having overcome the first obstacles of pioneer life, the settlers began to breathe freely. Their fields of waving grain, and herds of cattle and horses fattening upon the prairies, promised a rich reward for their labor and privations. But the grasshopper came and reduced the settlers to rations more meagre than before. By means of outside help the settlers rallied, and since then they have steadily prospered. Railroads are being built, and towns are springing up in all the region round about. The climate is perfect, and the facilities for grain and stock raising are said to be unsurpassed.

AMERICAN UNCONNECTED FAMILIES.

FRANCIS DOWSE. Of his ancestry nothing is known, yet he may have been a bro. to Lawrence Dows (1). He was in the employ of George Burden, Boston, Mass., in 1640, at which date he was living on the left side of Summer st., going from Washington st. Near by lived George Burden.

The name Francis Dowse is often seen in the early records of Boston, where we find that he was a merchant of some prominence, being creditor in many instances at the failures of his fellow-merchants. He was made freeman June 2, 1641; chosen constable Mar. 8, 1658; and sealer of leather Mar. 16, 1674.

Savage says that this Francis Dowse removed to Charlestown, but this is very doubtful. He owned two lots in Boston, one a "house and yard" on Elm st., on the right side from, and near to, Hanover st., going toward Union st.; the other a lot on Hanover, near Union, and toward Elm st., as now known.

He m. CATHERINE ——, by whom he had daughters only, and so the name became extinct. She d. Apr. 14, 1698.

His will, dated Dec. 13, 1680, made the wife executrix, and his faithful friend, Humphrey Davie, was appointed to see that his last will and testament was carried out as written. The daughters, Mary Hill, Deborah Collicott, Naomi Collins, Lydia Ingram, Sarah Dunel, and Hannah Homer, each received a part. Invt., Dec. 23, 1680—783*£* 1*s.* 8*d.*

The "Widow Dowse," mentioned in tax-list of Boston, 1681, was prob. the wid. of Francis.

The will of "Katherine Dowse," dated Oct. 26, 1697, gives to daughters Lydia Ingram, Naomi Collins, Mary Hill, and grandchildren, Katherine Collins and Frances Ingram, each a certain part. Invt., Apr. 25, 1698—160*£* 17*s.* Adm. granted May 5, 1698; Henry Ingraham and Matthew Collins, exrs.

iii. MARTHA, b. July 18, 1688. (Ruth, the reputed dau. of Ephraim Bullen, b. of Martha, Feb. 12, 1712.)
iv. SAMUEL, b. Apr. 29, 1695. His name in the birth record is given as "Samuel Dowst."

RICHARD DOWSE, a mariner, kept tavern and lived in Boston, Mass. In the reports of the Record Commissioners of Boston, we find: "Among petitioners for right to 'Sell Stron Drink as retailers' disallowed, was Richard Dowse in Charter St., 1729." The next year Richard Dowse was allowed to be a "Tavernor" at "Long Wharf." His license removed in 1734 "for not keeping good order att his house," but again renewed in 1735. Then said to reside on Love st.

He m. Mar. 19, 1721, in Boston, ELIZABETH FRANKLIN, sister to Benjamin Franklin, and wid. of Joseph Berry. Joseph Berry bought the brick house, No. 19 Unity st., which, after his death, went to his wife, and she continued to occupy it with her second husband, Richard Dowse, until the latter's death, which occurred between 1748 and 1753. In 1748 Richard Dowse gave a mortgage to Benjamin Franklin, which mortgage was not discharged after his death, and so the house became the property of Benjamin Franklin. He allowed his two sisters, Elizabeth Dowse and Jane Mecom, both widows, to occupy the house. But as there was a difference of thirty-five years in their ages (Elizabeth was the oldest, and Jane the youngest, of seventeen children), and a still greater difference in their tastes and habits, they did not get along well together. The younger sister wrote to her brother in Philadelphia, begging him to provide some other place for Elizabeth, who had become very troublesome in her old age. Franklin sent the following wise letter in reply:

"As having their own way is one of the greatest comforts of life to old people, I think their friends should endeavor to accommodate them in that as well as in any thing else.

"When they have long lived in a house, it becomes natural to them; they are almost as closely connected with it as the tortoise with his shell; they die if you take them out of it; so let our good old sister be no more importuned on that head. We are growing old fast ourselves, and shall expect the same kind of indulgences; if we give them, we shall have a right to receive them in return. . . .

"Old age, infirmities, and poverty, joined, are afflictions enough.

"The neglect and slights of friends and near relatives should never be added."—From "Rambles in Old Boston," by E. G. Porter.

The old lady died soon after, and Jane lived in the house undisturbed nearly forty years longer. It finally passed into the hands of the late Elias W. Goddard, and is now occupied by one of his sons.

Elizabeth Dowse, wid., gave deed to Benjamin Franklin, Sept. 27, 1753. Invt. of her estate made Oct., 1759, by admr. Jonathan Williams, included house and land near Dr. Cutler's chr., Boston. Estate settled Feb. 20, 1763.

STEPHEN BURR DOWSE was a soldier in the war of 1812-15; mustered at Washington; b. or hailed from New York, and honorably discharged from service. He was with Gen. Jackson at New Orleans, after which he came North and was not heard of afterward.
